THE LATER RETURNS HAVE CHANGED TALE OF DEMOCRATIC VOTE

A Rebuke Handed Governor

Harmon Majority Over Wilson Reduced to 12,000 Votes.

WILL CONTROL 27 DELEGATES

Friends Will Also Be In Charge of State Convention Which Will Elect Six Delegates-at-Large to Baltimore Convention, Where Unit Rule Will Be Enforced and State's Entire 48 Votes Cast For Governor—Where Wilson Won Out.

Columbus, O., May 23. — Although he has carried the state over Woodrow Wilson by 12,000 or upwards, Governor Harmon has not fared so well in later reports from Tuesday's primaries, and there is a chance that he will not get more than 27 out of 48 district delegates to the national convention at Baltimore.

There seems to be no doubt that the governor has lost his home county of Hamilton in a tight race. He has carried the Third district by a narrow margin of less than 500 votes, but has lost the preference vote in the Ninth and Nineteenth, in addition to the Twentieth and Twenty-first districts.

National Committeeman, who claimed half of the district votes, but included in his count S. H. Hanley and Schmitz of the board, who have declared for the governor.

Will Invoke Unit Rule. The governor's friends are expected to control the state convention, and there has been nothing to indicate their grip on it will not be firm enough to permit them to invoke the unit rule, which will mean a solid Ohio delegation of 48 for Harmon at Baltimore.

Although the governor carried the Thirteenth district by 2,100, he will lose one delegate. William Homer Reinhardt, anti-Harmon man, is elected in the district, due to a split in the Harmon vote between three candidates running as Harmon men.

The present indications are the governor has lost the two Eighth district delegates and two in the Fourth district. He seems to have carried both districts in the presidential preference vote, however.

He has lost one delegate in the Ninth, one in the Tenth, one in the Thirteenth, probably two in the Sixteenth, two in the Nineteenth, two in the Twentieth and one in the Twenty-first.

May Send A Warship To Cuban Waters

Washington, May 23.—Further reports from Cuba placed a more serious aspect on the negro uprising there. In the minds of the state officials, the matter of sending one or more warships to Cuban waters to back up the request made for protection of American life and property was discussed at the state department. Already doubt is felt of the ability of the Gomez government to afford such protection against the negro bands, no matter how good his intentions.

The abundance with which the provinces in which they have been sent to the field is a source of considerable perplexity to the state department officials. This fact has given rise to the theory that the negroes are being supplied with money, arms and other munitions of war by the faction interested in harassing the administration.

Remark Quickly Resented

Presbyterians Up In Arms Over Insinuation as to Orthodoxy.

Louisville, Ky., May 23.—What was taken to be an inference by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Henry of Philadelphia that one or more members of the board of publication and Sunday school work were not orthodox, provoked quick response from members of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. Names of the heterodox ones were called for. One commissioner declared that any member of the board who had to make mental reservations in his acceptance of the church's doctrines should at once resign. Moderator Matthews sternly forbade any challenge of any man's orthodoxy on the floor of the assembly, pointing out charges must be made before the proper tribunal of the church.

The report of the board of publication and Sunday school work was accompanied by resolutions providing for the appointment of a committee to confer with the board and to withdraw from distribution such graded lessons as are held to be unsatisfactory. Amended so as to provide that the decision of the committee alone would be sufficient to cause withdrawal of such literature, the resolution was adopted.

Methodists Elect Four Bishops. Minneapolis, Minn., May 23.—Dr. T. F. Henderson of Brooklyn and W. O. Shepard of Chicago are the new bishops of the Methodist Episcopal conference, elected on the eleventh ballot. Dr. Henderson received 562 and Dr. Shepard 532; necessary to elect, 524. On the fifteenth ballot Naphthali Luccock of Kansas City was elected, receiving 548 votes. This makes four of the eight bishops elected. Dr. Homer C. Stuntz of New York having been elected several days ago.

NOW FOR POWER IN THE STATE

Late Returns From Counties Show Roosevelt In Lead.

IS SURE OF 32 DELEGATES

May Go as High as 38 Out of 42 Selected—Manager Brown Is Reticent on Subject of Domination of Ohio Republican Gathering, but Laylin Insists That President Taft Has Big Bunch of Votes to Spare In Naming Big Six.

Columbus, O., May 23.—According to estimates made at Roosevelt headquarters here, friends of the colonel are quite likely to be in control of the Republican state convention which meets here June 3 and 4 to name the six delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention. Colonel Roosevelt will have 32 of the 42 district delegates from Ohio. A careful compilation, based on reports from every one of the 88 counties of the state, gives him 389 delegates against 368 for President Taft.

In many instances these returns only show the tendency of the county reporting. The county conventions to name delegates to the state convention are yet to be held, and there is a possibility that estimates of control of the county conventions may be in error.

Rural Districts Against Taft. The tabulation gives Mr. Taft Hamilton, Cuyahoga, Montgomery and Mahoning counties and one-third of the 31 Franklin county delegates. Despite the aid of 140 from the two largest counties, the president seemed to be unable to carry enough of the smaller counties to land the necessary 378, a majority.

Taft's manager, L. C. Laylin, claimed that the president is already assured of more than 400 state delegates and that domination of the state convention by the president's forces will be easy. State Chairman Brown made no special claim to the state convention.

With a certainty that the Seventh district delegation is split between Taft and Roosevelt, both sides let the figures stand at 32 for the colonel and 19 for Taft. Mr. Laylin claimed both Third district men and said the Taft delegates might number 13.

STATE WILL APPEAL

Wants Decision In Bribery Cases Irrespective of Huffman Verdict.

Columbus, O., May 23.—Owing to the illness of Clark Andrews, a juror in the Huffman bribery trial, the jury retired to the Southern hotel after considering the case only a short time. No agreement was reached in the case. It matters not what the verdict in the Huffman bribery trial may be, the state will seek to go direct into the supreme court for rulings on a number of questions as to the admissibility of certain evidence which has proved stumbling blocks in all the bribery trials. The rulings in question, without exception, have been adverse to the state.

Darrow Denies Rumor.

Los Angeles, May 23.—Hearing of evidence in the trial of Clarence Darrow, who is charged with bribery, commenced today. Darrow took cognizance of an eastern rumor that overtures had been made for a plea of guilty by vehemently denying the story.

Two Presidents at Princeton Inaugural—Taft and Hibben

EIGHTY-TWO presidents of universities and colleges were in attendance at the inauguration of Dr. John Grier Hibben as president of Princeton, and the president of the United States and two justices of the supreme court honored the occasion by their presence. The ceremony of taking the oath of office and receiving the charter and keys of the university took place in front of historic Old North, the building in which Washington received the acknowledgments by the Continental congress of his services to the new republic and which was for a part of 1783 the capitol of the United States. The photograph here reproduced shows the presidents of the republic and the university uniting in the singing of Princeton's famous battle hymn, "Old Nassau." A feature of the day's proceedings was the conferring of honorary degrees upon President Taft and Chief Justice White. The academic robes of the college dignitaries, together with the bright spring costumes of the women guests, gave the function a brilliancy not often equaled in an American university town.

NOW ELEVEN PROPOSALS ARE READY FOR ACTION OF THE CONVENTION

Effort Will Be Made to Rewrite Taxation Measure.

Columbus, O., May 23.—Efforts were made when the constitutional convention reassembled to finish its work to fix New Year's day as the date when all the constitutional amendments that may be approved by the people shall become effective. There will be opposition to the plan from the people who want to use the initiative and referendum in connection with the coming session of the general assembly. The same element will try to have the direct initiative adopted.

Eleven proposals handled by the committee on phraseology were reported to the convention and went on the calendar for third reading and final adoption. The first one taken up for final action was by Mr. Elson, providing that juries in civil cases may render verdicts on a vote of not less than three-quarters of the members so voting. Judge Norris of Marion occupied most of the time with an elaborate argument against it. He invoked the famous ordinance of 1787, claiming it was still effective and that the state had no right to adopt such a provision.

Strong efforts are being made to rewrite the taxation amendment that was adopted on second reading. The plan as passed provided for uniform rule for the whole state. It is the wish of some of the delegates to submit two plans to the people, allowing them the opportunity of making a choice. One would provide for the uniform rule and the other would be for classification.

The Archibald Hearing May Branch Out Many Involved

Boland Names Two Judges Under Suspicion.

Washington, May 23. — W. P. Boland, the Scranton coal operator who lodged charges against Judge Robert W. Archibald of the United States commerce court, brought the names of two other members of the court into the hearing before the house judiciary committee. Boland declared that E. J. Williams, Judge Archibald's business associate, had told him (Boland) that Judge Archibald was able to influence two other judges on the commerce court.

"Who are they?" asked A. S. Worthington, counsel for Judge Archibald. "I do not care to give the names," replied Mr. Boland, adding, "unless the committee directs, because I am making no charges against them nor is anybody."

After a consultation between the members of the committee, Boland submitted the names privately to Attorney Worthington and to the members of the committee.

BATTLE SHIFTS NOW TO JERSEY

Roosevelt and Taft Make Attack on New Jersey.

EACH IS CERTAIN OF VICTORY

President Says Result of Ohio Primaries Upholds His Cleveland Statement That Vote Would Decide Nomination7 at Chicago and That Plum Is His—Colonel Says He Has Enough Votes, but Wants to Show His Strength In Primaries.

Washington, May 23. — President Taft, notwithstanding the result of his Ohio campaign, still insists that he has the Republican nomination in his vest pocket. Instead of being depressed by the Roosevelt victory in his native state, President Taft took the situation more cheerfully than did many of his followers, and immediately announced his determination of contesting every inch of ground with Colonel Roosevelt in New Jersey. The president issued this statement:

"Our opponents quote from a statement of mine made in Cleveland that the fight in Ohio, my home state, much to my gratification, would be the decisive one and would settle the question of my nomination. This is true. I shall have at least 17 votes from Ohio, including the delegates-at-large, for we have every assurance that we shall control the state convention. This will constitute a clear majority in the national convention. Indeed, in addition to the votes from Ohio, delegates elected for me from other states of which I have been advised since my Cleveland statement gave me, at the most conservative estimate, 570 out of the 1,078 votes in the national convention—30 more than the number necessary to nominate.

Gives His Reasons. "I am going to New Jersey to take in the coming campaign there for the same reason that I went to Ohio, and such delegates as we may receive from New Jersey will thus make assurance doubly sure."

The first thing President Taft did on his return to the White House from his Ohio campaign was to approve the extension of his New Jersey campaign tour. The president had planned to end his New Jersey campaign with a speech in Atlantic City next Monday night, but after conferring with his New Jersey managers and reading the returns from Ohio he decided to carry the fight up until noon on Tuesday. The president will deliver 10 speeches on Tuesday morning between Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

ANOTHER BIG BARN AND CONTENTS BURN

Fred Janes Barn Near Jeffersonville Destroyed This Morning $500 Horse and Colt Burned to Crisp—Fire Is Due to Burning Trash.

At 9:15 o'clock Thursday morning a large barn owned by Fred Janes, living immediately west of Jeffersonville, just across the road from the Jeffersonville school house, caught fire and was destroyed within a very short time, consuming a horse, colt and calf besides grain, hay and harness.

The barn caught fire by sparks from a pile of burning trash within a short distance of the barn, the morning breeze carrying sparks to the barn and through a crack into the hay loft, which a few moments later was a roaring furnace.

Mr. Janes was absent at the time, but Mrs. Janes, realizing that the barn was hopelessly doomed, pluckily ran to the structure and made efforts to release a valuable percheron stallion in the building. However her efforts to release the animal met with failure, and it was consumed with the remainder of the barn contents. The horse was valued around $500.

The colt, one of considerable promise, could not be removed, and a calf also perished. When the flames reached a point near the animals their frenzied walls arose above the roar of the fierce flames.

A large number of persons from Jeffersonville rendered assistance in preventing the flames from communicating with other buildings, but hard work was necessary to save a new tool shed which was almost as valuable as the barn. This building was scorched and blistered, and although on fire repeatedly, the blaze was extinguished each time.

The main part of the barn, which was not a new structure by any means, was about 30 by 40 feet, and fanned by the sharp breeze, made a quick, furious fire.

The large Janes home was located 200 yards from the barn and out of danger.

Mr. Janes had some insurance on the barn and contents, but this will not cover the damage by at least one-half.

A new barn will be erected to take the place of the one destroyed.

AMATEUR GAME WARDEN SEARCHES FARM HOMES BUT FINDS NO SEINES

J. W. Wilson, or, as he is being dubbed by the farmers of Jefferson township, "Sherlock the second", the man who has been ransacking the township for seines and other illegal fishing paraphernalia, again swooped down upon the unsuspecting farmers of Jefferson and the edge of Paint township Wednesday, and armed with eight search warrants he spent a goodly part of the day searching premises of prominent farmers.

Wilson arrived in Jeffersonville Wednesday morning, secured the search warrants and deputizing Roy Lloyd to assist him, he started out to make the rounds of the places mentioned in the search warrants.

His first stop was at the home of a prominent farmer three miles east of Jeffersonville. The farmer was absent and Wilson, showing his search warrant, entered the premises, according to the information at hand, and turned the place topsy-turvy, house, barn, outbuildings and every place where he thought a seine might be secreted.

His efforts bore no fruit, however, so he went on to the next residence where a search proved fruitless. His entire trip is said to have resulted in failure and not a seine was uncovered, and the only thing he seems to have accomplished was to incur the enmity of the farmers whose premises he searched.

Wilson is the man who caused the arrest of Mr. Smith near Jeffersonville, and who had him tried for keeping a seine, although the evidence proved that the seine was kept for a private fish pond. This seine, with a transcript of the case, is now in the Clerk of Court's office, awaiting action in Common Pleas court.

Many of those visited by the young man are greatly wrought up over his visit.

NOMINATION CONCEDED TO LOCAL CANDIDATE

Vote Between Dr. R. M. Hughey and Renick W. Dunlap for Congress Close, But Everything Indicates Former Is Winner.

Everything now indicates that Dr. R. M. Hughey, of this city, has won in the congressional nomination fight, by at least 26 votes over Renick W. Dunlap, of Pickaway county, although at noon Thursday Mr. Dunlap was still claiming his nomination by a very low vote.

The complete official figures in Fayette county give Dr. Hughey 1184 and Dunlap 652, and 95 for Mr. Smith, giving Dr. Hughey the lead over Dunlap by 532 votes instead of 527 as first announced.

The official figures from Madison county came in Thursday afternoon giving Dunlap 766 and Hughey 432, or 334 plurality for Dunlap. This figure is 12 less for Dunlap than the unofficial figures.

The unofficial figures in Pickaway give Dunlap a plurality of 439, and one report from Miami places him in the lead up there by 358. However the Springfield papers claim his plurality in Miami was 275.

Taking the figures at hand (Clark, Miami and Pickaway being unofficial) Dr. Hughey's plurality in Fayette and Clark is 1157, while Dunlap's plurality in Madison, Pickaway and Miami is 1131, according to the highest figures given, or a victory for Hughey by 26 votes, subject to change in the official count.

If the figures given out from Springfield (Miami, 275 for Dunlap) are correct, then Hughey is the victor by 109 votes, subject to correction by the official count. The official counts will be completed by late Thursday evening.

During the conflicting reports which have arisen, both Hughey and Dunlap have conceded their defeat, only to have their hopes revived by new figures. Dr. Hughey is awaiting the official count before showing enthusiasm, while his friends agree that his nomination is certain. Practically all of the newspapers have conceded Hughey's election.

Giants Win Over Cincinnati

New York Defeats Cincinnati by Superior Box Work.

Cincinnati, O., May 22.—New York hit Cincinnati pitchers hard and won out despite a multitude of errors. Each team had to make use of two box men. Tesorau had poor control and Wiltse relieved him. He held the enemy safe all the way through. Keefe was hit hard in the first three innings and was ranked out at the beginning of the fourth. The bulk of the hitting for the Giants was done by Merkle.

MANAGER ISBELL HEARS ONE ON HIMSELF

Frank Isbell, Manager of Des Moines Club.

The following story is told on Frank Isbell, former major league star and present part owner of the Des Moines team. It happened recently when Izzy and his bunch were on their way to the southland.

Secretary McMullen of the Wichita club says: "I didn't pay much attention to what they were saying for quite a little bit, but after a while I heard the visitor saying thing about that — Frank Isbell," and then I began to listen. The fan was lining Izzy up as several kinds of a reprobate and horsethief, and Old Izzy was sitting in with him in everything he said, even going a little stronger most of the time.

"Most ungrateful man I ever knew anywhere," declared the fan. "Made all his money here in Wichita and then pulled up and went off somewhere else to spend it."

"Yes, I reckon that's right," said Isbell. "He probably didn't have a dime when he came here. Probably never anything much in the big league, even if he was up there 16 years or so."

Production of Mica In United States

The production of mica in the United States is one of the important lesser mineral industries, but although mica deposits are numerous and well distributed the imports still exceed the domestic production. The total value of mica produced in the United States last year amounted to $355,804, but the imports were valued at $502,163. These imports, however, were less by $222,362 than those of 1910.

Mica has a wide commercial application. The most extensive use of sheet mica is in the manufacture of electrical apparatus, but a considerable quantity is still used in the glazing trade for stoves, gas-lamp chimneys, etc. Only the best quality and the larger sheets are available for such purposes, but both large and small sheet mica is used in the electrical industry. "Micanite" or built-up mica board, in the making of which small sheet mica can be used, is substituted for large sheet mica in much electrical work. Mica serves as a perfect insulator in various parts of dynamos, motors, induction apparatus, switchboards, and in nearly every kind of electrical apparatus. Black "specks" of iron oxide in mica are popularly supposed, according to Mr. Sterrett, to render it worthless for electrical insulation. But that this is not the case is proved by the continued production of such mica in the United States and its use by large and reputable manufacturers. Tests made on domestic "specked" mica have shown that it is safe to use with currents of 1000 volts and that it has a capacity to withstand even much greater voltage.

Springfield Makes Ready For G. A. R.

Will Show Grand Army Boys Tim. of Their Lives in June.

Springfield, O., May 22.—Joining hands with the Commercial club of Springfield, the committee on arrangements for the coming state encampment of the G. A. R., which is to be held in this city June 17-21, is planning for an immense industrial parade. This will be held on the morning of June 20, the day on which the parade of veterans will be held. The Commercial club is working out the details of the parade, which will be of wide interest.

Governor Harmon will be in Springfield on this day and will review the parade of the old soldiers in the afternoon.

Are You A "Jay Walker"

What is a jay walker? We all know him and recognize him as a pest, but Kansas City was first in giving him a name and separate classification.

The jay walker is the person who walks or loiters in crowded streets, totally indifferent to the rights and conveniences of those he comes in contact with there. In crossing from one sidewalk to another he ignores the cross-walks and meanders among wagons, traction cars and automobiles with a recklessness that puts the drivers in danger of heart failure. On a crowded sidewalk he keeps to the left instead of the right, roughly shouldering his way through the oncoming stream of humanity.

He stops to talk with acquaintances on busy corners, planting himself where he will most interfere with the progress of the people passing by. On the narrow boardwalk in front of an excavation for a new building he leisurely surveys the operations going on behind the fence, compelling all who wish to pass to step off upon the dirty pavement. In the rear vestibule of the pay-as-you-enter car, he keeps women waiting while he deliberately takes off his gloves, unbuttons his overcoat and searches his pockets for the fare.

QUIT CALOMEL!
Thousands Are Turning from This Dangerous Drug.
A Safe Vegetable Substitute Is Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Portsmouth, Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects of calomel.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-oil colored tablet.

The results of fifteen years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own."

Aviator Falls To His Death

Aviator Ignores Warning and Loses His Life.

Xenia, O., May 22.—Fred J. Southard of Minneapolis, Minn., an aviator, fell 100 feet at the Wright aviation field near Osborn and was instantly killed. Southard, who was 40 years old, had just bought the aeroplane from the Wright brothers.

Southard obtained the keys to the hangar after he had been refused permission to take the aeroplane out without further experience. He fell just six minutes after he had begun his first flight alone. His body was badly crushed. The machine turned turtle in midair.

Ohio Postoffice Robbed.

Lima, O., May 22.—Yeggmen cracked the safe in the postoffice at Harrod, 12 miles east of this city. Thirty dollars in cash and between $500 and $600 in stamps were secured. The explosion awoke Luther Drury, residing next door, and he saw two men hurrying away. They stole a horse and buggy from William King and made their escape.

Farley Girl Greets Mother.

Columbus, O., May 22.—Miss Cecilia Farley, held on first degree murder charge for the alleged killing of Alvin E. Zollinger, today was clasped in the arms of her mother, who had traveled nearly across the United States since last Thursday, coming from Los Angeles, to her daughter's aid. To Chief Carter Mrs. Farley said that she knew nothing yet concerning the circumstances of the case, and it was not discussed further.

A delightful series of informal hops, under the auspices of the Danc- ing club, closed last evening with a brilliant ball at the Pythian Castle. Forty-five couples formed in a pretty grand march, introducing the spiral figure, led by Mr. Alex. Bal- lard and Miss Charlotte Dahl.

The music was splendid, furnished by the Mutt, Jeff and Turk orchestra of Springfield, an orchestra noted for its spirited rendering of popular dance music.

Smith Brothers served a tempting two course supper in the banquet hall.

Among the out-of-town guests Mr. and Mrs. Jess Grant, Mr. Earl Grant, Grove City, Mrs. Chas. Hun- sicker, Williamsport; Miss Laura Miller, Circleville; Miss Mary Har- sha, Wilmington; Miss Eggleston, Bloomington; Mr. Frambee, Colum- bus; Mr. Thos. Tucker and Mr. Frank Sage, Cincinnati; Mr. Haulse Hays, Circleville.

In both the older families and the younger society circles of Wash- ington C. H., the wedding invitations of Miss Nancy Simpson, only daugh- ter of Mr. and Mrs. William Simp- son, of Chicago, to Mr. Clifford Bron- son Potter, elicits unusual interest. The bride elect is well known through frequent visits to her aunts, Mrs. Frank L. Stutson and Mrs. Bertha L. Miller, and has been great- ly admired for her exceptional beau- ty and charm of manner. The bride- groom is a wealthy young business man of Chicago, engaged in the wholesale dry goods business.

The marriage will be an elaborate affair of June the 11th at the bride's home, 4646 Drexel Boulevard. Mrs. Louise Stutson Potter and Miss Jan- et Stutson will be two of the quartet of bridesmaids.

The young couple expect to reside in LaGrange, Ill., one of the most beautiful of the Chicago suburbs.

The engagement of Miss Stephanie Prager, of Roswell, N. M., to Mr. John I. Cassidy, president of Na- tional Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md., has been announced.

Miss Prager graduated from Na- tional Park in the same class with Miss Janet Stutson last June and later visited Miss Stutson. A bril- liant student and a girl of very at- tractive personality, Miss Prager was a favorite at National Park and has been no less so wherever she has been introduced in social circles.

The wedding takes place June 12. Mr. Cassidy expects to take his bride on a European tour either this summer or in the fall.

SHE BURNED THE HOUSE.

A woman in Montana sat down the other day and thought about house cleaning—about the carpets and rugs to clean, the woodwork to wash, the bedding to wash, the curtains to wash, the portiers to wash, the stair- ways and the railings and the floors and the steps and the windows and everything else to be washed and cleaned—and she got so worried over the prospect that she set fire to the house. Do you blame her? If she had only known as you do that Easy Task soap will do half the work of washing and cleaning, she would have felt more cheerful. It's a nickel a cake and one woman said she would pay a dollar a cake for it if she could get it no other way.

THE LATER RETURNS HAVE CHANGED TALE OF DEMOCRATIC VOTE

A Rebuke Handed Governor NOW FOR POWER IN THE STATE

Harmon Majority Over Wilson Reduced to 12,000 Votes.

WILL CONTROL 27 DELEGATES

Friends Will Also Be In Charge of State Convention Which Will Elect Six Delegates-at-Large to Baltimore Convention, Where Unit Rule Will Be Enforced and State's Entire 48 Votes Cast For Governor—Where Wilson Won Out.

Columbus, O., May 23. — Although has carried the state over Woodrow Wilson by 12,000 or upwards, Governor Harmon has not fared so well in later reports from Tuesday's primaries, and there is a chance that he will not get more than 27 out of 48 district delegates to the national convention at Baltimore.

There seems to be no doubt that the governor has lost his home county of Hamilton in a tight race. He has carried the Third district by a narrow margin of less than 500 votes, but has lost the preference vote in the Ninth and Nineteenth, in addition to the Twentieth and Twenty-first districts.

National Committeeman Harmon claimed half of the district delegates, but included in his count S. S. Stanley and Sohnsten of the Third, who have declared for the governor.

Will Invoke Unit Rule. The governor's friends are expected to control the state convention, and there has been nothing to indicate their grip on it will not be firm enough to permit them to invoke the unit rule, which will mean a solid delegation of 48 for Harmon at Baltimore.

Although the governor carried the thirteenth district by 2,100, he will lose one delegate. William Homer Mahbert, anti-Harmon man, is elected in the district, due to a split in the Harmon vote between three candidates running as Harmon men.

The present indications are the governor has lost the two Eighth district delegates and two in the Fourth district. He seems to have carried the districts in the presidential preference vote, however.

He has lost one delegate in the Tenth, one in the Eleventh, probably two in the Sixteenth, two in the Nineteenth, two in the Twentieth and one in the Twenty-first.

May Send A Warship To Cuban Waters

Washington, May 23.—Further reports from Cuba placed a more serious aspect on the negro uprising in the minds of the state officials. The matter of sending one or two warships to Cuban waters to suppress the request made for protection of American life and property was discussed at the state department. Already doubt is felt of the ability of the Gomez government to afford such protection against the rebels, no matter how good his intentions.

The abundance with which the provinces are supplied with arms in all provinces in which they have been to the field is a source of considerable perplexity to the state department officials. This fact has given rise to the theory that the negroes are being supplied with money, and other munitions of war by some faction interested in harassing the administration.

Remark Quickly Resented

Presbyterians Up In Arms Over Insinuation as to Orthodoxy.

Louisville, Ky., May 23.—What was taken to be an inference by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Henry of Philadelphia that one or more members of the board of publication and Sunday school work were not orthodox, provoked quick response from members of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America. Names of the heterodox ones were called for. One commissioner declared that any member of the board who had to make mental reservations in his acceptance of the church's doctrines should at once resign. Moderator Matthews sternly forbade any challenge of any man's orthodoxy on the floor of the assembly, pointing out charges must be made before the proper tribunal of the church.

The report of the board of publication and Sunday school work was accompanied by resolutions providing for the appointment of a committee to confer with the board and to withdraw from distribution such graded lessons as are held to be unsatisfactory. Amended so as to provide that the decision of the committee alone would be sufficient to cause withdrawal of such literature, the resolution was adopted.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 23.—Dr. T. F. Henderson of Brooklyn and W. O. Shepard of Chicago are the new bishops of the Methodist Episcopal conference, elected on the eleventh ballot. Dr. Henderson received 562 and Dr. Shepard 532; necessary to elect, 524. On the fifteenth ballot Naphthali Luccock of Kansas City was elected, receiving 548 votes. This makes four of the eight bishops elected. Dr. Homer C. Stuntz of New York having been elected several days ago.

NOW FOR POWER IN THE STATE

Late Returns From Counties Show Roosevelt In Lead.

IS SURE OF 32 DELEGATES

May Go as High as 38 Out of 42 Selected—Manager Brown Is Reticent on Subject of Domination of Ohio Republican Gathering, but Laylin Insists That President Taft Has Big Bunch of Votes to Spare in Naming Big Six.

Columbus, O., May 23.—According to estimates made at Roosevelt headquarters here, friends of the colonel are quite likely to be in control of the Republican state convention which meets here June 3 and 4 to name the six delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention. Colonel Roosevelt will have 32 of the 42 district delegates from Ohio. A careful compilation, based on reports from every one of the 88 counties of the state, gives him 389 delegates against 368 for President Taft.

In many instances these returns only show the tendency of the counties reporting. The county conventions to name delegates to the state convention are yet to be held, and there is a possibility that estimates of control of the county conventions may be in error.

Rural Districts Against Taft.

The tabulation gives Mr. Taft Hamilton, Cuyahoga, Montgomery and Mahoning counties and one-third of the 31 Franklin county delegates. Despite the aid of 140 from the two largest counties, the president seemed to be unable to carry enough of the smaller counties to land the necessary 378, a majority.

Taft's manager, L. C. Laylin, claimed that the president is already assured of more than 400 state delegates and that domination of the state convention by the president's forces will be easy. State Chairman Brown made no special claim to the state convention. With a certainty that the Seventh district delegation is split between Taft and Roosevelt, both sides let the figures stand at 32 for the colonel and 19 for Taft. Mr. Laylin claimed both Third district men and said the Taft delegates might number 13.

STATE WILL APPEAL

Wants Decision In Bribery Cases Irrespective of Huffman Verdict.

Columbus, O., May 23.—Owing to the illness of Clark Andrews, a juror in the Huffman bribery trial, the jury retired to the Southern hotel after considering the case only a short time. No agreement was reached in the case. It matters not what the verdict in the Huffman bribery trial may be, the state will seek to go direct into the supreme court for rulings on a number of questions as to the admissibility of certain evidence which has proved stumbling blocks in all the bribery trials. The rulings in question, without exception, have been adverse to the state.

Los Angeles, May 23.—Hearing of evidence in the trial of Clarence Darrow, who is charged with bribery, commenced today. Darrow took cognizance of an eastern rumor that overtures had been made for a plea of guilty by vehemently denying the story.

EIGHTY-TWO presidents of universities and colleges were in attendance at the inauguration of Dr. John Grier Hibben as president of Princeton, and the president of the United States and two justices of the supreme court honored the occasion by their presence. The ceremony of taking the oath of office and receiving the charter and keys of the university took place in front of historic Old North, the building in which Washington received the acknowledgments by the Continental congress of his services to the new republic and which was for a part of 1783 the capitol of the United States. The photograph here reproduced shows the presidents of the republic and the university uniting in the singing of Princeton's famous battle hymn, "Old Nassau." A feature of the day's proceedings was the conferring of honorary degrees upon President Taft and Chief Justice White. The academic robes of the college dignitaries, together with the bright spring costumes of the women guests, gave the function a brilliancy not often equaled in an American university town.

NOW ELEVEN PROPOSALS ARE READY FOR ACTION OF THE CONVENTION

Effort Will Be Made to Rewrite Taxation Measure.

Columbus, O., May 23.—Efforts were made when the constitutional convention reassembled to finish its work to fix New Year's day as the date when all the constitutional amendments that may be approved by the people shall become effective. There will be opposition to the plan from the people who want to use the initiative and referendum in connection with the coming session of the general assembly. The same element will try to have the direct initiative adopted.

Eleven proposals handled by the committee on phraseology were reported to the convention and went on the calendar for third reading and final adoption. The first one taken up for final action was by Mr. Elson, providing that juries in civil cases may render verdicts on a vote of not less than three-quarters of the members so voting. Judge Norris of Marion occupied most of the time with an elaborate argument against it. He invoked the famous ordinance of 1787, claiming it was still effective and that the state had no right to adopt such a provision.

Strong efforts are being made to rewrite the taxation amendment that was adopted on second reading. The plan as passed provided for uniform rule for the whole state. It is the wish of some of the delegates to submit two plans to the people, allowing them the opportunity of making a choice. One would provide for the uniform rule and the other would be for classification.

The Archibald Hearing May Branch Out Many Involved

Boland Names Two Judges Under Suspicion.

Washington, May 23. — W. P. Boland, the Scranton coal operator who lodged charges against Judge Robert W. Archibald of the United States commerce court, brought the names of two other members of the court into the hearing before the house judiciary committee. Boland declared that E. J. Williams, Judge Archibald's business associate, had told him (Boland) that Judge Archibald was able to influence two other judges on the commerce court.

"Who are they?" asked A. S. Worthington, counsel for Judge Archibald. "I do not care to give the names," replied Mr. Boland, adding, "unless the committee directs, because I am making no charges against them nor is anybody."

After a consultation between the members of the committee, Boland submitted the names privately to Attorney Worthington and to the members of the committee.

BATTLE SHIFTS NOW TO JERSEY

Roosevelt and Taft Make Attack on New Jersey.

EACH IS CERTAIN OF VICTORY

President Says Result of Ohio Primaries Upholds His Cleveland Statement That Vote Would Decide Nomination at Chicago and That Plum Is His—Colonel Says He Has Enough Votes, but Wants to Show His Strength in Primaries.

Washington, May 23. — President Taft, notwithstanding the result of his Ohio campaign, still insists that he has the Republican nomination in his vest pocket. Instead of being depressed by the Roosevelt victory in his native state, President Taft took the situation more cheerfully than did many of his followers, and immediately announced his determination of contesting every inch of ground with Colonel Roosevelt in New Jersey. The president issued this statement:

"Our opponents quote from a statement of mine made in Cleveland that the fight in Ohio, my home state, much to my gratification, would be the decisive one and would settle the question of my nomination. This is true. I shall have at least 17 votes from Ohio, including the delegates-at-large, for we have every assurance that we shall control the state convention. This will constitute a clear majority in the national convention. Indeed, in addition to the votes from Ohio, delegates elected for me from other states of which I have been advised since my Cleveland statement give me, at the most conservative estimate, 570 out of the 1,078 votes in the national convention—30 more than the number necessary to nominate.

Gives His Reasons.

"I am going to New Jersey to take in the coming campaign there for the same reason that I went to Ohio, and such delegates as we may receive from New Jersey will thus make assurance doubly sure."

The first thing President Taft did on his return to the White House from his Ohio campaign was to approve the extension of his New Jersey campaign tour. The president had planned to end his New Jersey campaign with a speech in Atlantic City next Monday night, but after conferring with his New Jersey managers and reading the returns from Ohio he decided to carry the fight up until noon on Tuesday. The president will deliver 10 speeches on Tuesday morning between Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

A DUTY.

Disaster or misfortune is sometimes the only means which will force upon individuals the knowledge that the discharge of plain duty is being neglected wilfully or the necessity for prompt action overlooked.

While this is very measurably true as to individuals it is much more generally, indeed almost universally, true as to communities.

The destruction last Sunday morning of one of Washington's few manufacturing institutions—The Washington Handle Factory—by fire, and the fact that easily accessible so far as distance was concerned, this valuable property of this labor employing company was reduced from a thoroughly appointed plant to a mere pile of ashes and scrap without any real facilities obtainable so far as the municipality was concerned, has brought the people of Washington up with a jerk, which compels realization of existing conditions—conditions that are not at all to the liking of progressive citizens and the existence of which does not testify favorably to the thrift and enterprise of the community.

Few of our citizens knew that the nearest water plug or fire hydrant to the handle factory site is four squares away in any direction, and that this valuable property—valuable to owners and to the city—was without adequate fire protection.

Think of it! One of our valuable industries allowed to remain thirteen hundred and fifty feet away from the fire hydrant and with about fifteen hundred feet of serviceable hose in the fire department.

Doesn't listen very good.

But that is not the real point of the matter. The situation is more serious than that.

The owners of the factory are not inclined to consider favorably the proposition to rebuild here unless the city makes better arrangements for the protection of its property against damage or destruction by fire.

Washington cannot afford to lose any of its industries. We should be fighting for more of them all the time, and if it is within the power of the city to remove the possibility of loss of any of those we now have, that possibility should be removed.

No complaint is made on account of anything that has gone before, and it is impossible for officials but lately in office to do everything at once, but now that the matter has been so forcefully called to our attention, here is one plain duty, the discharge of which can no longer be postponed.

There is no doubt that the duly constituted authorities will look after this important work at once, and the sooner the better, for the reason that the men who have it in their power to locate the industry must, after the experience of Sunday morning, be assured that all is right.

Poetry—Today

REGARDING ROME.

Rome once upon her seven hills
Sent out her troops and spanked
the world,
Put other lands between the thills,
On ev'ry sea her flag unfurled.
And I'm for Julius Caesar now,
Although that gentlemen is dead,
Because of such a life he led,
That copped the prize in ev'ry row.

J. Caesar put Rome on the map.
He advertised it near and far;
He mixed in ev'ry kind of scrap—
At boosting Julius was a star.
He talked about it when at home,
He bragged about it when away,
Until from Britain to Cathay
They heard about the town of Rome.

I wish we had some Romans here,
The regular, stem-winder kind Who'd whoop it up through all the year
And leave the other towns behind.
I wish we had some Caesars, too,
This good, old town to advertise
Until it grew to twice its size
With brotherhood as thick as glue.

Let's get together, you and I;
We've got a town that's worth the while;
Let's open up, emit a cry.
That other folks can hear a mile.
Let's talk about the burg so dear
Until it gets so big a thing
They'll run excursion trains to bring
The folks who want to settle here.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

To Stay Well Sleep Enough.
A sufficient amount of sleep is an important factor in keeping well. Sleep is the only form of complete rest. There is a less amount of blood flowing over the brain surface in our sleeping than in our waking hours. During sleep the brain cells regain their strength. Good, sound, healthy, dreamless sleep in a well ventilated room is indeed "nature's sweet restorer." One should try to form the habit of retiring at the same hour every night when possible, for sleep does the most good when it is regular. The amount of sleep required depends upon the individual. Children, of course, require more than adults. The child of four needs twelve hours, the boy or girl of fourteen needs nine and the average adult eight. Too high a pillow is a frequent cause for restlessness, and when this is the case the pillow should be removed or a low one substituted.

THE CITY GARDENER

The Reason Electric Wires Are Covered

If you ask the ordinary individual why the electric light wires are always covered he will mutter something about "insulation" and hurry away on a very important errand.

To insulate is to separate, to isolate an object so it can have no communication with any other part or body. Therefore, a wire is said to be insulated when it is covered or wrapped with material to prevent leakage of the electric current. Electricity is always in a hurry, it is always seeking a short cut to complete its cycle. It would not travel miles and miles through small wires, stopping here to light a house, there to illuminate a street or a factory, again to turn the wheels of a loaded car, or to drive countless machines, if it could help it. It would be only too pleased to jump off the wire if it could and avoid this enormous work by hurrying back to the earth which is a good conductor.

Electricity lights our homes, drives our cars, turns our wheels, cooks our food, and does a thousand other tasks. This is work of the hardest kind and the electricians in charge have to be continually on the watch to see that the rascal does this work as he passes along and does not sneak out and take a short cut for home.

Dry is the best insulating material next rank glass, mica, porcelain, rubber, lava, oils, and fats, and cloth in their order. The wires used about ordinary buildings are insulated with rubber, oils, and dry cloth, this combination being lasting, flexible, and very durable. Some of the smaller wires, designed to carry weak charges of electricity, such as those for electric door bells, burglar alarms, etc., are merely insulated with a covering of closely woven linen or silk threads.

One of the most interesting sights at the mammoth plant of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., is the manufacture of insulated wire. Several huge buildings are devoted to this important part of the electrical industry. The smaller wires are merely covered with a strip of paraffine paper over which is woven a close fitting jacket of linen or silk thread. This wire is usually employed in dry places for weak charges and such a thin insulation is ample protection.

For larger sizes, usually a number of small wires are twisted into a cable, ranging all the way from the size of a lead pencil to as big as a man's upper arm, more protection is necessary. In most cases the wire or cable is first passed through a peculiar machine which winds a strip of paraffine or waxed paper its entire length. From this machine it passes to another which covers it with sheets of rubber composition. This would effectually insulate it, but this insulation has to be protected from wear and tear. First it needs a strong covering of closely woven linen cord. This is put on by a special loom which weaves a tight fitting cover over the wire. If it is a small cable or merely a heavy wire it is then dipped into some insulating solution and dried, being then ready for use. The larger wires are

"armored" either with a lead sheath or a cover of sheet steel cut into strips and woven over the entire length of the wire by a large knitting machine which covers the wire with this protective covering at a surprising rate. The lead armor is spun on while in a molten condition much the same way as a spider spins her web.

A horizontal section of a large electric cable, such as is used to transmit heavy currents of electricity, would show an inner covering of twisted copper wires, which carries the current. Around this appear alternate layers of insulation, usually consisting of waxed paper, rubber composition, linen threads impregnated with oils and a final covering of lead. This is the most effective insulation known to the industry. Not only is the cable flexible and easily handled but the electric current is absolutely prevented from jumping off of the wires. The lead armor prevents the insulating material from abrasion and injury and keeps out the moisture.

Glass, porcelain, lava, mica, etc., not being flexible to any great extent are used only where the work is adapted to these peculiarities. Glass and porcelain can be readily moulded into any shape or form and, therefore, most of the common insulators, designed to keep bare wires away from conductive bodies are made of these materials. It is good practice to suspend the electric wires on poles or towers where they are effectively and perfectly insulated by the surrounding dry air except for the contact points where the wires are suspended. At these points glass and porcelain insulators are used with the best of results.

With all this work to insulate a small wire it is wonderful that it can be sold so cheaply. The low cost of insulating wire is entirely due to the fact that most all the insulating work is done by high speed machinery. The bare wire is fed into a machine from a large reel and it emerges from the other side covered with the insulating material.

IN THE LAST FEW YEARS MANY WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES HAVE PRESENTED THEMSELVES, BUT NONE WILL BE OF SUCH FARREACHING CONSEQUENCE AS THE COMPLETE ANNIHILATION OF SPACE.

This will be accomplished in three fields—the transmission of intelligence, the transport of bodies and materials and the conveying of the energy necessary to the sustenance of modern life.

If carefully analyzed all the clashes between individuals and nations and their disastrous results can be traced to the physical impossibility of getting into close contact. Annihilate distance in thought and action and you will give UNBOUNDED OPPORTUNITIES TO THE ECONOMIC, HEALTHFUL AND PEACEFUL DEVELOPMENT OF MANKIND. This annihilation of distance will be brought about by the TRANSMISSION OF ENERGY WITHOUT WIRES.

The next step will be the transportation of bodies and materials through the medium of FLYING MACHINES OPERATED FROM WIRELESS PLANTS. The introduction of power for this purpose will do away with all the limitations that now confront aerial navigation and make travel through the air entirely safe and comfortable. The third step will take a much longer time for realization, but will ultimately be accomplished by the general introduction of wireless power for all necessities.

ANOTHER BIG BARN AND CONTENTS BURN

Fred Janes Barn Near Jeffersonville Destroyed This Morning $500 Horse and Colt Burned to Crisp—Fire Is Due to Burning Trash.

At 9:15 o'clock Thursday morning a large barn owned by Fred Janes, living immediately west of Jeffersonville, just across the road from the Jeffersonville school house, caught fire and was destroyed within a very short time, consuming a horse, colt and calf besides grain, hay and harness.

The barn caught fire by sparks from a pile of burning trash within a short distance of the barn, the morning breeze carrying sparks to the barn and through a crack into the hay loft, which a few moments later was a roaring furnace.

Mr. Janes was absent at the time, but Mrs. Janes, realizing that the barn was hopelessly doomed, pluckily ran to the structure and made efforts to release a valuable percheron stallion in the building. However her efforts to release the animal met with failure, and it was consumed with the remainder of the barn contents. The horse was valued around $500.

The colt, one of considerable promise, could not be removed, and a calf also perished. When the flames reached a point near the animals their frenzied wails arose above the roar of the fierce flames.

A large number of persons from Jeffersonville rendered assistance in preventing the flames from communicating with other buildings, but hard work was necessary to save a new tool shed which was almost as valuable as the barn. This building was scorched and blistered, and although on fire repeatedly, the blaze was extinguished each time.

The main part of the barn, which was not a new structure by any means, was about 30 by 40 feet, and fanned by the sharp breeze, made a quick, furious fire.

The large Janes home was located 200 yards from the barn and out of danger.

Mr. Janes had some insurance on the barn and contents, but this will not cover the damage by at least one-half.

A new barn will be erected to take the place of the one destroyed.

AMATEUR GAME WARDEN SEARCHES FARM HOMES BUT FINDS NO SEINES

J. W. Wilson, or, as he is being dubbed by the farmers of Jefferson township, "Sherlock the second", the man who has been ransacking the township for seines and other illegal fishing paraphernalia, again swooped down upon the unsuspecting farmers of Jefferson and the edge of Paint township Wednesday, and armed with eight search warrants he spent a goodly part of the day searching premises of prominent farmers.

Wilson arrived in Jeffersonville Wednesday morning, secured the search warrants and deputizing Roy Lloyd to assist him, he started out to make the rounds of the places mentioned in the search warrants.

His first stop was at the home of a prominent farmer three miles east of Jeffersonville. The farmer was absent and Wilson, showing his search warrant, entered the premises, according to the information at hand, and turned the place topsy-turvy, house, barn, outbuildings and every place where he thought a seine might be secreted.

His efforts bore no fruit, however, so he went on to the next residence where a search proved fruitless. His entire trip is said to have resulted in failure and not a seine was uncovered, and the only thing he seems to have accomplished was to incur the enmity of the farmers whose premises he searched.

Wilson is the man who caused the arrest of Mr. Smith near Jeffersonville, and who had him tried for keeping a seine, although the evidence proved that the seine was kept for a private fish pond. This seine, with a transcript of the case, is now in the Clerk of Court's office, awaiting action in Common Pleas court.

Many of those visited by the young man are greatly wrought up over his visit.

NOMINATION CONCEDED TO LOCAL CANDIDATE

Vote Between Dr. R. M. Hughey and Renick W. Dunlap for Congress Close, But Everything Indicates Former Is Winner.

Everything now indicates that Dr. R. M. Hughey, of this city, has won in the congressional nomination fight, by at least 26 votes over Renick W. Dunlap, of Pickaway county, although at noon Thursday Mr. Dunlap was still claiming his nomination by a very low vote.

The complete official figures in Fayette county give Dr. Hughey 1184 and Dunlap 652, and 95 for Mr. Smith, giving Dr. Hughey the lead over Dunlap by 532 votes instead of 527 as first announced.

The official figures from Madison county came in Thursday afternoon giving Dunlap 766 and Hughey 432, or 334 plurality for Dunlap. This figure is 12 less for Dunlap than the unofficial figures.

The unofficial figures in Pickaway give Dunlap a plurality of 439, and one report from Miami places him in the lead up there by 358. However the Springfield papers claim his plurality in Miami was 275.

Taking the figures at hand (Clark, Miami and Pickaway being unofficial) Dr. Hughey's plurality in Fayette and Clark is 1157, while Dunlap's plurality in Madison, Pickaway and Miami is 1131, according to the highest figures given, or a victory for Hughey by 26 votes, subject to change in the official count.

If the figures given out from Springfield (Miami, 275 for Dunlap) are correct, then Hughey is the victor by 109 votes, subject to correction by the official count. The official counts will be completed by late Thursday evening.

During the conflicting reports which have arisen, both Hughey and Dunlap have conceded their defeat, only to have their hopes revived by new figures. Dr. Hughey is awaiting the official count before showing enthusiasm, while his friends agree that his nomination is certain. Practically all of the newspapers have conceded Hughey's election.

"We Will Rebuild If Better Protection Is Offered Factory"

Washington can have the Washington Handle Factory rebuilt again if the water mains are extended to a point where they will be effective in protecting the factory in the manner possible if fire plugs are located near the factory.

The above came to light today during an interview with Mr. O. J. Mobley, who owns a large percent of the stock of the Washington Handle Factory, a plant which has been furnishing employment to a score of men and manufacturing over half a million shovel handles annually.

In speaking of the prospects of rebuilding, Mr. Mobley said that three years ago when he rebuilt the factory, it was with the understanding that better fire protection would be given his industry, as both the Handle factory and the Wonder Manufacturing Company's plant are some four squares from water hydrants, so that one stream of water is all that could be laid to fight the flames, allowing the factories to be at the mercy of the fire demon.

Mr. Mobley further stated that it had come to a place where the company did not deem it advisable to rebuild unless the water mains were extended as they should be to insure as much protection as possible, and if the mains were extended, that he believed there was no question but what the factory would be rebuilt immediately, as soon as the loss is adjusted.

In addition to speaking of the water mains extension, Mr. Mobley mentioned the haphazard method of turning in fire alarms, and said that the only really safe and sure method was the alarm box system, and that no delay would then result as the alarm would be direct and the pumping station notified at the same time by an alarm gong.

It is thought that the water mains will be extended to a point near the factories, as the district, in addition to representing valuable manufacturing interests of vital importance to the city, is becoming more and more densely populated, and better protection for both homes and factories is needed.

The bride elect is well known through frequent visits to her aunts, Mrs. Frank L. Stutson and Mrs. Bertha L. Miller, and has been greatly admired for her exceptional beauty and charm of manner. The bridegroom is a wealthy young business man of Chicago, engaged in the wholesale dry goods business.

The marriage will be an elaborate affair of June the 11th at the bride's home, 4646 Drexel Boulevard. Mrs. Louise Stutson Potter and Miss Janet Stutson will be two of the quartet of bridesmaids.

The young couple expect to reside in LaGrange, Ill., one of the most beautiful of the Chicago suburbs.

The engagement of Miss Stephanie Prager, of Roswell, N. M., to Mr. John I. Cassidy, president of National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md., has been announced.

A brilliant student and a girl of very attractive personality, Miss Prager was a favorite at National Park and has been no less so wherever she has been introduced in social circles.

The wedding takes place June 12. Mr. Cassidy expects to take his bride on a European tour either this summer or in the fall.

SHE BURNED THE HOUSE.

A woman in Montana sat down the other day and thought about house cleaning—about the carpets and rugs to clean, the woodwork to wash, the bedding to wash, the curtains to wash, the portiers to wash, the stairways and the railings and the floors and the steps and the windows and everything else to be washed and cleaned—and she got so worried over the prospect that she set fire to the house. Do you blame her? If she had only known as you do that Easy Task soap will do half the work of washing and cleaning, she would have felt more cheerful. It's a nickel a cake and one woman said she would pay a dollar a cake for it if she could get it no other way.

National Memorial

Air: STAR SPANGLED BANNER
Words by
FREDERICK R. MERES

Oh say can you see by the dawn of the day,
The day set apart for the grave decoration,
The remnant of those who in battle array
Had offered their lives for the life of our Nation;
That the shackle and chain no longer remain,
Nor the slave block its horror our Nation profane?

CHORUS:

Then gather the flowers that grow by the way,
And strew on the graves of the Blue and the Gray.

Oh the havoc of shell and the gloom of the pen,
The ravage of fever, the pang of starvation,
Are past and forgiven by this band of brave men
Who honor the graves with love and elation.
For the sword now is sheathed, they are resting beneath
The sod and the wave for the freedom of slave.

CHORUS:

Then lovingly cast on the crest of the wave
The tribute of love for the true and the brave.

Then cast on the flowers, deck the monument fair,
In church-yard and park with thy holy reflection;
With malice to none and in charity share
The principles held by the great of each section,
And the flag of the free forever will be
The emblem of peace and of true liberty.

CHORUS:

We will counsel our children to honor the day
That ended the strife 'tween the Blue and the Gray.

Who Drank the Toddy?

By Fitzhugh Lee

On August, 1862, the armies of General Lee and General Pope confronted each other on the Rappahannock river, in Virginia. General Lee had determined to attack Pope, and conceived a plan as brilliant as it was daring. He purposed to leave one-half of his army under Longstreet in front of Pope, and throw the other half, under Jackson, by a circuitous march to a point twenty-one miles exactly between him and Washington.

In pursuance of his plan and to facilitate its execution, a day or two before Jackson started Lee determined to throw his cavalry, under Stuart, twelve miles in Pope's rear, at Catlett's Station, a point on the railroad connecting Pope with his capital.

At that place were encamped the reserve, baggage and ammunition trains of Pope's army. There, too, were his personal effects. Stuart captured a number of officers and men, a large sum of money in a safe in one of the tents and dispatches and other papers, but the rain fell in such torrents and the night was so dark that

"It Was Vacant."

It was not possible for Stuart to damage the railroad to any extent or to burn the railroad bridges or the acres of camp wagons that were there.

My command was in advance on that terrible rainy night. I was riding with the lieutenant commanding the platoon which formed the advance guard, when I suddenly saw, between the flashes of lightning, a man run across the road.

Under the influence of the spur my horse in a single bound reached the man, and under the influence of a pistol held to his head he told me that he was a servant of General Pope who was there with his headquarters tents, which, he said, were pitched in a clump of pines close by.

I made him get up in front of one of the troopers and guide a squadron, which I detached from the leading regiment, to the tents in the pines. On reaching the spot I quickly surrounded the federal headquarters, and, seeing a light in one of the tents, I dismounted and with one of my men entered it.

It was vacant, but filled with a large number of papers, showing where some one had been recently writing. There were also two glasses of toddy on the table.

A few days thereafter I captured a squadron of the Federal dragoons, under Major Thomas Hite of the regular army, whom I had formerly known when a cadet at West Point.

The major said that he and Lewis Marshall, the latter being an aide de camp of Pope and a nephew of General Lee, were in one of the tents that night and that he had been working all day over his quartermaster papers, and in view of the fact, as well as the tempestuous character of the night, he proposed to Marshall that they should take a drink.

"The whisky was brought out," continued the major, "sugar was put in glasses with the proper amount of water, to which a liberal allowance of whisky was added. I was just pouring the toddy from one glass to the other, thinking how soon the situation would be improved by swallowing it, when I heard the noise of horses' hoofs, and the report of one or two pistol shots. I quickly put the glasses down, saying, 'I believe that is some of that—Confederate cavalry.'"

At this point of the narrative the major paused, and after looking around, added, "Gentlemen, if you believe me, I do not know whether I drank that toddy or not. The 'Rebs' were on us so quick that Marshall and I lifted the side of the tent and rolled down into a friendly ravine, and remained there shivering in the drenching rain until they rode off."

It only remains to say that Hite and Marshall did not drink the toddies they mixed, but that they rapidly disappeared down the throats of the two wet Confederates who found them.

The Two Flags

OCCASIONALLY there comes to the writing man a story ready made from actual happenings before his eyes. Or there is told to him some tale that does not require the slightest movement of literary machinery to weave it into shape. The wool and warp are as straight and true and compact as if it had required hours of concentration to produce the fabric. Actual events follow in such dramatic sequence that it almost seems as if art had been brought to bear upon their presentation.

The other day a magazine writer visited the new state house in Boston in order to see the decorations that had been recently placed on the walls. He was standing looking at the picture painted by Mr. Robert Reid, the picture of Otis delivering his fiery speech before the judges, when suddenly a voice spoke at his elbow. Looking round, he saw standing beside him a short, slight man in a blue uniform. It did not take the little bronze button in the lapel of his coat to label him as an old soldier. He was stamped with it from the erect carriage of his head and shoulders to the glance of his keen gray eye.

"You have been through the building?" he asked suddenly. And upon being told that it was the writer's first visit, he politely offered his services as guide. They were accepted promptly. The little man in blue pointed out the old Hessian drum and sword, the first musket captured from the British, and the one that fired the shot at Lexington. He knew stories of the famous portraits on the walls, and after having examined the old senate and council chamber, he led the visitor down to the great octagon-shaped rotunda, where, behind their plates of glass, artfully grouped and festooned, were the battle flags of the Massachusetts regiments—nothing but the bare flagstaves of some, others mere shreds of bunting hanging in pathetic festoons, only a few with the colors intact, pierced here and there with bullet holes. Stopping before the first corner he began in his low, well-modulated voice to explain about them. There were two shafts, shattered and roughly spliced a few inches below the gilded spear-heads.

"Those two flags," he began, "were given to the regiment by two sisters, who were engaged to be married to two officers; one a captain, the other a lieutenant. As you see, the flags were both hit in almost identically the same spot, and under them both officers were killed." Pointing to another flag he said, "Beneath this flag seven men were killed and four were wounded. It was decorated with a medal of honor." So it went on. There was a story to almost every one of the timeworn relics of the battlefields. At last the guide came to the case in the northwest corner of the hall. Immediately in front was a silken banner across whose faded red and white strips was a big blotch of brown. It needed no second glance to tell what the blotch meant.

"There is a story here," remarked the visitor, and the little man in blue looked at him keenly.

"Yes, sir, there is," he replied. "Three men were killed carrying that flag at the battle of Appomattox; as one would fall another would snatch it up, and still they carried it forward. As they went on, in the charge, a shell exploded over the head of the last man who had caught it, and a fragment struck him in the arm, between shoulder and elbow, cutting it off as by a surgeon's knife. He clasped the flag to his breast with the bloody stump and staggered on. At last, as he felt himself weakening, he turned about, and, seeing near him a man in his company who came from the same town, he cried, 'For God's sake, take it, Frank, I can't carry it any longer.'"

The visitor was breathless. "Well," he said, "and then—"

"There is a strange ending to that," returned the guide. "I was telling this to some visitor only the other day, and had got as far as what I am telling you when a tall man with gray hair, who was standing about where you are now, spoke up. 'Comrade,' he said, 'you're right! I was Frank.'"

A few minutes later, as they went down the corridor, the visitor asked another question.

"And what was the name of the sergeant whose blood we see there?" he asked.

"His name was Plunkett," was the answer. "There he is!" A soldierly looking man in the blue uniform of a messenger of the senate came walking down the corridor. The magazine writer and his guide turned toward him. Across his breast was pinned an empty sleeve.—J. B. in Harper's Weekly.

THANHOUSER—2-Reel Feature—TONIGHT The Palace The Cry of the Children

An episode of the illegal use of child labor, suggested by the poem of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. This feature is not what would be termed a thriller, but it is a deep, powerful, true-to-life story that will go straight to the heart. Settings are faithful in every detail, and the acting is flawless. Last, but not least, is the role played by the Thanouser Kid. As Roosevelt said at Louisville: "When I plead the cause of the child toiling at inhuman labor, I am not only fighting for the weak; I am fighting, also, for the strong."

"Sure Sign" Of Big Corn Crop

When Mr. Farmer beholds the locust trees laden with snowy, fragrant blossoms, he regards it as a sure forecast of a bounteous corn crop, and, remarkable as it may appear, such is invariably the case. This year the locust trees are covered with bloom, and unless the "sure sign" fails, Fayette county will have one of the greatest corn crops in its history, regardless of the delay in planting.

A DUTY.

Disaster or misfortune is sometimes the only means which will force upon individuals the knowledge that the discharge of plain duty is being neglected wilfully or the necessity for prompt action overlooked.

While this is very measurably true as to individuals it is much more generally, indeed almost universally, true as to communities.

The destruction last Sunday morning of one of Washington's few manufacturing institutions—The Washington Handle Factory—by fire, and the fact that easily accessible so far as distance was concerned, this valuable property of this labor employing company was reduced from a thoroughly appointed plant to a mere pile of ashes and scrap without any real facilities obtainable so far as the municipality was concerned, has brought the people of Washington up with a jerk, which compels realization of existing conditions—conditions that are not at all to the liking of progressive citizens and the existence of which does not testify favorably to the thrift and enterprise of the community.

Few of our citizens knew that the nearest water plug or fire hydrant to the handle factory site is four squares away in any direction, and that this valuable property—valuable to owners and to the city—was without adequate fire protection.

Think of it! One of our valuable industries allowed to remain thirteen hundred and fifty feet away from the fire hydrant and with about fifteen hundred feet of serviceable hose in the fire department.

Doesn't listen very good.

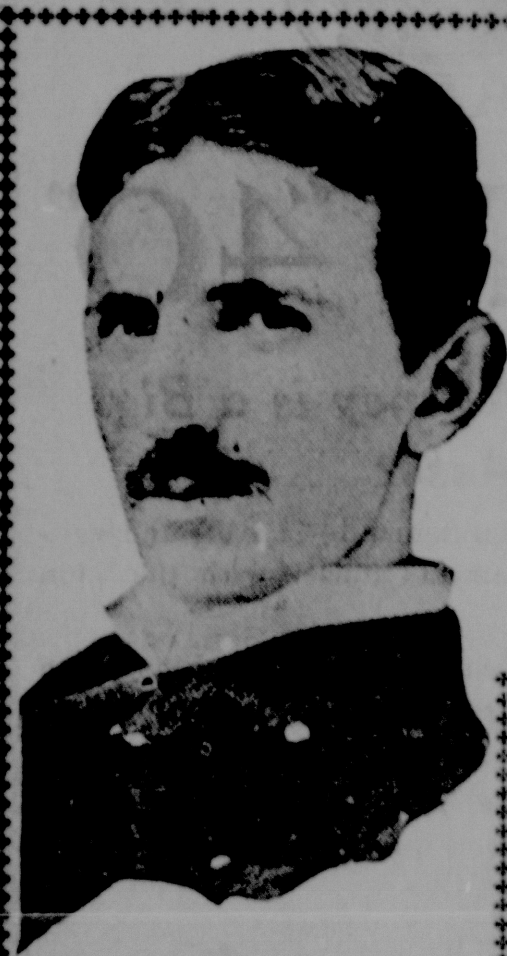

But that is not the real point of the matter. The situation is more serious than that.

The owners of the factory are not inclined to consider favorably the proposition to rebuild here unless the city makes better arrangements for the protection of its property against damage or destruction by fire.

Washington cannot afford to lose any of its industries. We should be fighting for more of them all the time, and if it is within the power of the city to remove the possibility of loss of any of those we now have, that possibility should be removed.

No complaint is made on account of anything that has gone before, and it is impossible for officials but lately in office to do everything at once, but now that the matter has been so forcefully called to our attention, here is one plain duty, the discharge of which can not longer be postponed.

There is no doubt that the duly constituted authorities will look after this important work at once, and the sooner the better, for the reason that the men who have it in their power to locate the industry must, after the experience of Sunday morning, be assured that all is right.

We Will Have
 Soon
 Conquered
 Space Completely

By NIKOLA TESLA,
 Inventor

IN THE LAST FEW YEARS MANY WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES HAVE PRESENTED THEMSELVES, BUT NONE WILL BE OF SUCH FARREACHING CONSEQUENCE AS THE COMPLETE ANNIHILATION OF SPACE.

This will be accomplished in three fields—the transmission of intelligence, the transport of bodies and materials and the conveying of the energy necessary to the sustenance of modern life.

If carefully analyzed all the clashes between individuals and nations and their disastrous results can be traced to the physical impossibility of getting into close contact. Annihilate distance in thought and action and you will give UNBOUNDED OPPORTUNITIES TO THE ECONOMIC, HEALTHFUL AND PEACEFUL DEVELOPMENT OF MANKIND. This annihilation of distance will be brought about by the TRANSMISSION OF ENERGY WITHOUT WIRES.

The next step will be the transportation of bodies and materials through the medium of FLYING MACHINES OPERATED FROM WIRELESS PLANTS. The introduction of power for this purpose will do away with all the limitations that now confront aerial navigation and make travel through the air entirely safe and comfortable. The third step will take a much longer time for realization, but will ultimately be accomplished by the general introduction of wireless power for all necessities.

Poetry—Today

REGARDING ROME.

Rome once upon her seven hills
 Sent out her troops and spanked
 the world,
 Put other lands between the hills,
 On ev'ry sea her flag unfurled.
 And I'm for Julius Caesar now,
 Although that gentlemen is dead,
 Because of such a life he led,
 That copped the prize in ev'ry row.

J. Caesar put Rome on the map.
 He advertised it near and far;
 He mixed in ev'ry kind of scrap—
 At boosting Julius was a star.
 He talked about it when at home,
 He bragged about it when away,
 Until from Britain to Cathay
 They heard about the town of Rome.

I wish we had some Romans here,
 The regular, stem-winder kind
 Who'd whoop it up through all the year
 And leave the other towns behind.
 I wish we had some Caesars, too,
 This good, old town to advertise
 Until it grew to twice its size
 With brotherhood as thick as glue.

Let's get together, you and I;
 We've got a town that's worth the while;
 Let's open up, emit a cry.
 That other folks can hear a mile.
 Let's talk about the burg so dear
 Until it gets so big a thing
 They'll run excursion trains to bring
 The folks who want to settle here.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

To Stay Well Sleep Enough.
 A sufficient amount of sleep is an important factor in keeping well. Sleep is the only form of complete rest. There is a less amount of blood flowing over the brain surface in our sleeping than in our waking hours. During sleep the brain cells regain their strength. Good, sound, healthy, dreamless sleep in a well ventilated room is indeed "nature's sweet restorer." One should try to form the habit of retiring at the same hour every night when possible, for sleep does the most good when it is regular. The amount of sleep required depends upon the individual. Children, of course, require more than adults. The child of four needs twelve hours, the boy or girl of fourteen needs nine and the average adult eight. Too high a pillow is a frequent cause for restlessness, and when this is the case the pillow should be removed or a low one substituted.

The Reason Electric Wires Are Covered

If you ask the ordinary individual why the electric light wires are always covered he will mutter something about "insulation" and hurry away on a very important errand.

To insulate is to separate, to isolate an object so it can have no communication with any other part or body. Therefore, a wire is said to be insulated when it is covered or wrapped with material to prevent leakage of the electric current. Electricity is always in a hurry, it is always seeking a short cut to complete its cycle. It would not travel miles and miles through small wires, stoppin here to light a house, there to illuminate a street or a factory, again to turn the wheels of a loaded car, or to drive countless machines, if it could help it. It would be only too pleased to jump off the wire if it could and avoid this enormous work by hurrying back to the earth which is a good conductor.

Electricity lights our homes, drives our cars, turns our wheels, cooks our food, and does a thousand other tasks. This is work of the hardest kind and the electricians in charge have to be continually on the watch to see that the rascal does this work as he passes along and does not sneak out and take a short cut for home.

Dry is the best insulating material next rank glass, mica, porcelain, rubber, lava, oils, and fats, and cloth in their order. The wires used about ordinary buildings are insulated with rubber, oils, and dry cloth, this combination being lasting, flexible, and very durable. Some of the smaller wires, designed to carry weak charges of electricity, such as those for electric door bells, burglar alarms, etc., are merely insulated with a covering of closely woven linen or silk threads.

One of the most interesting sights at the mammoth plant of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., is the manufacture of insulated wire. Several huge buildings are devoted to this important part of the electrical industry. The smaller wires are merely covered with a strip of paraffine paper over which is woven a close fitting jacket of linen or silk thread. This wire is usually employed in dry places for weak charges and such a thin insulation is ample protection.

For larger sizes, usually a number of small wires are twisted into a cable, ranging all the way from the size of a lead pencil to as big as a man's upper arm, more protection is necessary. In most cases the wire or cable is first passed through a peculiar machine which winds a strip of paraffine or waxed paper its entire length. From this machine it passes to another which covers it with sheets of rubber composition. This would effectually insulate it, but this insulation has to be protected from wear and tear. First it needs a strong covering of closely woven linen cord. This is put on by a special loom which weaves a tight fitting cover over the wire. If it is a small cable or merely a heavy wire it is then dipped into some insulating solution and dried, being then ready for use. The larger wires are

"armored" either with a lead sheath or a cover of sheet steel cut into strips and woven over the entire length of the wire by a large knitting machine which covers the wire with this protective covering at a surprising rate. The lead armor is spun on while in a molten condition much the same way as a spider spins her web.

A horizontal section of a large electric cable, such as is used to transmit heavy currents of electricity, would show an inner covering of twisted copper wires, which carries the current. Around this appear alternate layers of insulation, usually consisting of waxed paper, rubber composition, linen threads impregnated with oils and a final covering of lead. This is the most effective insulation known to the industry. Not only is the cable flexible and easily handled but the electric current is absolutely prevented from jumping off of the wires. The lead armor prevents the insulating material from abrasion and injury and keeps out the moisture.

Glass, porcelain, lava, mica, etc., not being flexible to any great extent are used only where the work is adapted to these peculiarities. Glass and porcelain can be readily moulded into any shape or form and, therefore, most of the common insulators, designed to keep bare wires away from conductive bodies are made of these materials. It is good practice to suspend the electric wires on poles or towers where they are effectively and perfectly insulated by the surrounding dry air except for the contact points where the wires are suspended. At these points glass and porcelain insulators are used with the best of results.

With all this work to insulate a small wire it is wonderful that it can be sold so cheaply. The low cost of insulating wire is entirely due to the fact that most all the insulating work is done by high speed machinery. The bare wire is fed into a machine from a large reel and it emerges from the other side covered with the insulating material

Jovial Mood

Colonel Declares Ohio Result Makes His Nomination a Cinch.
Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 23.—Colonel Roosevelt summed up his latest victory in the following words: "The result in Ohio has settled the contest." This morning he started on his campaign with a determination to add New Jersey to his list of wins in open primaries. It will be the last fight of the campaign for the nomination. He is confident of winning. Though he is sure that the nomination is his without New Jersey, the colonel is extremely anxious to finish up his fight with a strong victory in this state, so that his record of victories in states where there has been an open preference vote may be unmistakably clear.

"The victory in Ohio means that it will be hopeless to try to beat us at Chicago," continued the colonel in his statement, "by unseating our delegates who represent the popular will in Washington, Indiana, Kentucky and elsewhere, nor will it be possible for our opponents to win by seating delegates from southern states who represent nothing but fraud." The crowd laughs. The colonel had been chatting along about the victory in an informal way until someone happened to mention that the "impulsive judgment" of the people of Ohio seemed to have turned the trick. The crowd laughed and the colonel was highly tickled. He was in the most jovial kind of mood as he talked, seated in his library, and in riding boots and tan riding suit, just before a cross-country ride. The "impulsive judgment" of the people is a phrase he borrowed from Tim Woodruff's characterization of Roosevelt mob backing, that the colonel loves and constantly uses facetiously on the stump.

"Yes, yes, their impulsive judgment," he said. The colonel was pleased about the strength of the negro vote for him as showing that the negroes appreciated his stand in the Brownsville affair, which the Taft managers started as an issue against him, and which became such a live issue in his favor.

In opening his three-day tour of New Jersey today the colonel will spend part of the day in Patterson, Passaic and Hackensack. From Hackensack he will motor through Hasbrouck Heights, Bloomfield, Montclair and West Orange in the afternoon. He will be entertained at luncheon at the Hamilton club in Patterson and at dinner at the Essex County Country club at West Orange.

"Mary, did you see Mr. Jones in church Sunday?"
"Yes, Grace and I hardly recognized him, as I thought he was bald or nearly so. What has he done?"
"Well, Mary, Mrs. Jones told me that he has been using Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream and he is so pleased he can't talk about anything else."

"If people would only take care of their hair, keep the scalp free from dirt, dandruff and itching scales, with this English Tonic, Herb Shampoo, an abundance of healthy hair would be the result."

"I know a lot of people who are using Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream. They are all so enthusiastic over it. Blackmer & Tanquary—our local druggists—sell it; 25c a tube, enough for three or four shampoos."

OLD TIME FAVORITES OF THE DIAMOND
Will Play Here Next Sunday at Athletic Park.

The following will be the line-up and batting order at this city for Sunday, May 26th:
Hilderbrand, cf; Sullivan, lf; Pat Donahue, c; Collins, ss; McGuff, 3b; Snyder, 2b; Mitchell, rf; Nye, 1b; Mercer and McDonald, p.
It will be remembered when Washington C. H. had the salaried team, Evans, now of the Reds, was playing there before the salaried team had started, when Dick Collopy had the team. They beat Dick's team and then went to Wilmington and beat the team there; then they went to Bloomington and that is where Geo. Melvin signed Pat. Donahue and Andy Ward from the Reds, and they have both been in big show. Pat is home now and will be with the Reds Sunday at your city. Two years ago he was with Philadelphia Americans, the world champions, last year with Toledo. Jack Mercer, drafted two years ago by Pittsburgh, from Quincy, Ill., last year won city championship for Shiloh and Lily Brew Dayton this year with Chattanooga, Tenn. McDonald, fresh from Syracuse, of the Eastern league; Jim Mitchell, Brother Mike, captain Cincinnati Reds, who has also played professional ball with Newark, N. J., Eastern league. McGuff, six feet and 4 inches tall, who was with Macon, Ga., this season. Collins, who has signed with Burlington, Iowa and won't report. Sullivan and Hilderbrand are old leaguers and played with the Reds in this city when we lead the salaried team. Many remember also Washington C. H. salaried team only lost 7 games the whole season and the Reds beat them the first game they lost, after winning 15 straight, 8 to 7. These old stars appearing here with the Springfield Reds at the Athletic park should prove a strong magnet for the local fans—old ones who know what these stars can do, and later-day fans who expect much of them and know them by reputation, given by those who lived in the days when Washington had a salaried team.
A game surely worth while is scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

Memorial Day
Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., jurist, was born in Boston, Mass., March 8, 1841. He received his education at Harvard university, where he received the degree of A. B. in 1861 and L. L. B. in 1862. In 1886 he received the degree of L. L. D. from Yale, and in 1909 the degree of D. C. L. from Oxford. He served three years in the 20th Mass. volunteers as lieutenant and lieutenant colonel; was wounded in the neck at Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862, and in the foot at Marye's Heights, Fredericksburg, May 3, 1863. He was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1867, became professor of law at Harvard law school in 1882, was associate justice from 1882 to 1899; chief justice from 1899 to 1902 in the supreme court of Massachusetts and associate justice of the supreme court of the United States Dec. 4, 1902.
(From an address before John Sedgwick Post No. 4, G. A. R., Keene, N. H., May 30, 1911.)

OMRAGES, some of the associations of this day are not only triumphant, but joyful. Not all of those with whom we once stood shoulder to shoulder—not all of those whom we once loved and revered—are gone. On this day we still meet our companions in the freezing winter bivouacs and in those dreadful summer marches where every faculty of the soul seemed to depart one after another, leaving only a dumb animal power to set the teeth and to persist—a blind belief that somewhere and at last there was rest and water. On this day, at least, we still meet and rejoice in the closest tie which is possible between men—a tie which suffering has made indissoluble for better, for worse.

When we meet thus, when we do honor to the dead in terms that must sometimes embrace the living, we do not deceive ourselves. We attribute no special merit to a man for having served when all were serving. We know that if the armies of our war did anything worth remembering, the credit belongs not mainly to the individuals who did it, but to average human nature. We also know very well that we cannot live in associations with the past alone, and we admit that if we would be worthy of the past, we must find new fields for action or thought, and make for ourselves new careers. But, nevertheless, the generation that carried on the war has been set apart by its experience. Through our great good fortune, in our youth our hearts were touched with fire. It was given to us to learn at the outset that life is a profound and passionate thing. While we are permitted to scorn nothing but indifference, and do not pretend to undervalue the worldly rewards of ambition, we have seen with our own eyes, beyond and above the gold fields, the snowy heights of honor, and it is for us to bear the report to those who come after us. But, above all, we have learned that whether a man accepts from fortune her spade, and will look downward and dig, or from aspiration her axe and cord, and will scale the ice, the one and only success which it is his to command is to bring to his work a mighty heart.

Such hearts—ah me, how many!—were still 20 years ago; and to us who remain behind is left this day of memories. Every year—in the full tide of spring, at the height of, the sympathy of flowers and love and life—there comes a pause, and through the silence we hear the lonely pipe of death. Year after year lovers wandering under the apple boughs and through the clover and deep grass are surprised with sudden tears as they see black veiled figures stealing through the morning to a soldier's grave. Year after year the comrades of the dead follow, with public honor, procession and commemorative flags and funeral march—honor and grief from us who stand almost alone, and have seen the best and noblest of our generation pass away.

But grief is not the end of all. I seem to hear the funeral march become a paean. I see beyond the forest the moving banners of a hidden column. Our dead brothers still live for us, and bid us think of life, not death—of life to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of the spring. As I listen, the great chorus of life and joy begins again, and amid the awful orchestra of seen and unseen powers and destinies of good and evil our trumpets sound once more a note of daring, hope, and will.

Patriotism.
You cannot analyze it. It is subtle, but it is true. It often "sleeps like the lamb, but roused from its lethargy breaks out with the strength of the lion." Never was patriotism more sublime than in the soldier of '61.

While Lela Switzer, daughter of Wm. Switzer, of near Danville, was walking along the streets in Danville a few days ago, a dog attacked her, inflicting a wound upon her ankle.

The fangs of the animal left a bad wound which was dressed by Dr. E. B. Meade, of Sedalia.

The dog was killed. Whether it had the rabies is not known.

FACE DISFIGURED.

Barber's Itch Causes Scars—Treat It Promptly.

Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

When little yellowish pimples or watery blisters form on the hairy portions of the face and body, it is a sign of barber's itch, which is very contagious and if allowed to become chronic, is painful and produces permanent scars.

This disease is caused by a tiny parasite, and when treated with Saxon Salve, our new skin remedy, which permeates and saturates the skin, these parasites are killed, and the skin made healthy again.

Saxon Salve is wonderfully healing in all kinds of skin diseases and eruptions, such as salt rheum, tetter, eczema, ivy poisoning, etc., because it penetrates the skin and carries its purifying and healing ingredients to every portion of the diseased tissue.

It is guaranteed to satisfy you perfectly—we cheerfully give back your money if it does not. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington C. H., Ohio.

"We Will Rebuild If Better Protection Is Offered Factory"

Washington can have the Washington Handle Factory rebuilt again if the water mains are extended to a point where they will be effective in protecting the factory in the manner possible if fire plugs are located near the factory.

The above came to light today during an interview with Mr. O. J. Mobley, who owns a large percent of the stock of the Washington Handle Factory, a plant which has been furnishing employment to a score of men and manufacturing over half a million shovel handles annually.

In speaking of the prospects of rebuilding, Mr. Mobley said that three years ago when he rebuilt the factory, it was with the understanding that better fire protection would be given his industry, as both the Handle factory and the Wonder Manufacturing Company's plant are some four squares from water hydrants, so that one stream of water is all that could be laid to fight the flames, allowing the factories to be at the mercy of the fire demon.

Mr. Mobley further stated that it had come to a place where the company did not deem it advisable to rebuild unless the water mains were extended as they should be to insure as much protection as possible, and if the mains were extended, that he believed there was no question but what the factory would be rebuilt immediately, as soon as the loss is adjusted.

In addition to speaking of the water mains extension, Mr. Mobley mentioned the haphazard method of turning in fire alarms, and said that the only really safe and sure method was the alarm box system, and that no delay would then result as the alarm would be direct and the pumping station notified at the same time by an alarm gong.

It is thought that the water mains will be extended to a point near the factories, as the district, in addition to representing valuable manufacturing interests of vital importance to the city, is becoming more and more densely populated, and better protection for both homes and factories is needed.

Workhouse Sentences Given Two Offenders

Chief McCoy went to Columbus Thursday morning, taking with him Kirby Henderson, 29, colored, and Chas. (Can.) Martin, white, who commence serving liberal terms in the Columbus workhouse for crimes committed.

Henderson is the young man who was arrested upon an affidavit filed by his father, charging cruelty to animals. He was tried Wednesday afternoon before Mayor Smith, entered a plea of guilty, and received 30 days in the Columbus workhouse and $100 and the costs, which will keep him busy making rat-traps for some time to come.

Martin is the man who took possession of the wife, two children and household goods of Henry Knight, and against whom Knight filed an affidavit charging certain statutory offenses.

When tried Martin entered a plea of guilty to the charge, and received $100 and costs and 30 days in the Columbus workhouse. Martin could not raise the money, and was taken to the workhouse to work out the fine and sentence as above mentioned.

The Knight woman who was also arrested at her home near Sabina, was to plead to the charge against her some time Thursday.

Latonia to Open

On Memorial Day

Spring Meeting to Consist of
Twenty-four Racing Days.

DERBY WILL BE RUN JUNE 8

Indications Point to Greatest Session of Racing Ever Seen in the West, as the Best Horses in Training at the Present Time Are Entered in the Memorial Handicap and Other Events That Will Follow—Special Rates Arranged For Opening and Derby Days and on Saturdays by Railroads.

The spring meeting of the Latonia
Jockey club will begin on May 30, with the running of the $3,000 Memorial handicap as the feature. Twenty-three days more racing will follow and the meeting will close on June 26.

The greatest Derby ever run in the west will take place on Saturday June 8.

Latonia is one of the garden spots of the country and the race course has always been famed for its beautiful surroundings. It lies in the Licking valley, nestling among majestic
Kentucky hills and the scenic view-ture is most picturesque.

Since the advent of John Hachmeister, who is in complete charge, the Latonia track, which was built 23 years ago, has been brought to the standard of an up-to-date racing plant.
Thirty thousand dollars were spent last year on the track, and when the opening day rolls around Latonia can claim to be the best appointed racecourse in the country. It can be easily reached from Cincinnati by Covington trolley cars, which go direct to the grandstand. The L. & N.
also has a splendid train service to the course from the Fourth and Smith street depot. There is also a splendid roadway through Covington and then via the Madison pike, which makes it a pleasant journey with carriage or motor.

Owing to the big interest in the coming races at Latonia, the L. & N.
road has arranged for a special rate
on the opening day and on Derby day from some of the principal cities of Kentucky, and the C. & O. & T. P.
railway has done the same thing.
The L. & N. has also provided for a round trip from Louisville to Latonia
every Saturday during the meeting, return tickets being good until Monday morning.

The indications point to the greatest session of racing ever seen in the west. The Memorial handicap is sure to be a great race, and the Derby will be a struggle between the giants of the three-year-old division.

Best Horses Entered.

In the Memorial handicap are Meridan, winner of the Kentucky Derby of 1911, and one of the best horses in training at the present time. Then there is Adams Express, who beat the great Meridan at Louisville, Fashion Plate, Granite, Round the World and about 65 others. The three great three-year-olds, Worth, Sprite and The Manager, are also on the list, and one or two of these will go to the post

if the weight assigned is looked upon with favor.

The Derby is the best looking one that ever Latonia presented. In that race there will be a struggle for turf supremacy the like of which has not been seen. Here is Worth, winner of the Kentucky Derby a few weeks ago.
He belongs to H. C. Hallenbeck, an eastern millionaire. There is The Manager, belonging to Tom O'Dowell, who is every inch the true type of the Kentucky gentleman. There is Sprite, owned by H. K. Knapp, another eastern millionaire and one of the pillars of the Eastern Jockey club.

It can be seen that if the race resolves itself to a struggle between the Kentucky horse against the pets of the eastern millionaires, there will surely be a race. The owners of these three clinkers all believe that their own is best, and the struggle will be a bitter one. The three mentioned will hardly have the race to themselves, as there are a large number of good colts eligible, and at a difference in the weight might do the unexpected.

Besides these two stakes there are four others which will be run on Saturday, with the exception of the Trophy stake, which will be decided on the closing day.

The betting will be done through the pari-mutuals, which have been found the fairest of all betting systems, and they, at the same time, remove much of the incentive for dishonesty.

John C. Weber's prize band of America will hold a concert daily before and during the races.

ESCAPES AN AWFUL FATE.

A thousand tongues could not express the gratitude of Mrs. J. E. Cox, of Joliet, Ill., for her wonderful deliverance from an awful fate. "Typhoid pneumonia had left me with a dreadful cough," she writes. "Sometimes I had such awful coughing spells I thought I would die. I could get no help from doctor's treatment or other medicines till I used Dr. King's New Discovery. But I owe my life to this wonderful remedy for I scarcely cough at all now." Quick and safe, its the most reliable of all throat and lung medicines.

DRAW OUT POISON.

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glass, Wood and Needles from the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock, of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies
such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds,
because it kills the pain instantly.
It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at Brown's Drug Store.

BEST SKIN SOAP.

Is San Cura Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing virtues. Use it regularly, and it will make the skin soft and velvety; will remove pimples and blackheads. It's the real soap for babies' tender skin, which mothers of infants should remember.

BALL AND BAT

NOTES

The Brooklyn club has released outfielder Coulson to the Newark club.
Hilltop patrons rather like the playing of Zinn. He handles fly balls with judgment and ease.

Chase is fielding his position as well
as ever, but always has hit better than he is now doing.

Higgins, the new Brooklyn catcher, handles himself like an old timer. He'll get a chance in a regular game some day.

Big Tesreau of the Giants looks as if he would have a regular turn in the box. He's got everything, including nerve.

Louden, last year's Newark infielder, has made a big hit at Detroit's third base and Hugh Jennings says he will keep him there.

If the Cincinnati will take $5,000
for the release of the Cuban outfielder Marsans the Washington club will pay that amount in a jiffy.

Griffith has the Washingtons fighting and hustling for everything, and likewise he's rather a nuisance with his chattering from the bench.

Russell Ford, Ed Walsh, Nap Rucker, Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson are pitchers of note who have been subjected to defeat this season.

There is still hope for the Highlanders. Only a few years ago a Boston team started off the season with nine straight defeats and yet it won the championship.

The magnates are partially convinced that the championship season begins too early, but they don't contemplate a change in view of the way
the fans crowd around the box office windows.

Pitcher George Bell, formerly of Brooklyn, has notified Manager Mc-Ginnity of Newark, that he will be unable to play this season on account of having had a floating cartilage removed from his knee.

Many competent authorities figure the Boston Nationals 25 per cent.
stronger than they were last season,
and there are Boston fans willing to wager high hats, neckties and boxes of candy that the Braves will finish in the first division.

Theodore Breitenstein, the veteran left-hand pitcher, who was a $10,000 beauty many years ago, has at last abandoned himself to fate. He has accepted a position as umpire in the Southern league, where, they say, the fans have perfect control and the pop bottles never miss their mark.

Artillery Figures In Latest Engage-

Rehano, Chihuahua, May 23.—
Fighting between the federals and rebels was resumed with usual vigor, much of it being artillery. Although the federals had advanced to within two miles of the rebel trenches and there was much skirmishing between outposts, nothing is known of the casualties on the field, but they have been light in the rebel trenches.

Air: STAR SPANGLED BANNER
Words by
FREDERICK R. MERES

Oh say can you see by the dawn of the day,
The day set apart for the grave decoration,
The remnant of those who in battle array
Had offered their lives for the life of our Nation;
That the shackle and chain no longer remain,
Nor the slave block its horror our Nation profane?

CHORUS:

Then gather the flowers that grow by the way,
And strew on the graves of the Blue and the Gray.

Oh the havoc of shell and the gloom of the pen,
The ravage of fever, the pang of starvation,
Are past and forgiven by this band of brave men
Who honor the graves with love and elation.
For the sword now is sheathed, they are resting beneath
The sod and the wave for the freedom of slave.

CHORUS:

Then lovingly cast on the crest of the wave
The tribute of love for the true and the brave.

Then cast on the flowers, deck the monument fair,
In church-yard and park with thy holy reflection;
With malice to none and in charity share
The principles held by the great of each section,
And the flag of the free forever will be
The emblem of peace and of true liberty.

CHORUS:

We will counsel our children to honor the day
That ended the strife 'tween the Blue and the Gray.

Who Drank the Toddy? By Fitzhugh Lee

ON August, 1862, the armies of General Lee and General Pope confronted each other on the Rappahannock river, in Virginia. General Lee had determined to attack Pope, and conceived a plan as brilliant as it was daring. He purposed to leave one-half of his army under Longstreet in front of Pope, and throw the other half, under Jackson, by a circuitous march to a point twenty-one miles exactly between him and Washington.

In pursuance of his plan and to facilitate its execution, a day or two before Jackson started Lee determined to throw his cavalry, under Stuart, twelve miles in Pope's rear, at Catlett's Station, a point on the railroad connecting Pope with his capital. At that place were encamped the reserve, baggage and ammunition trains of Pope's army. There, too, were his personal effects. Stuart captured a number of officers and men, a large sum of money in a safe in one of the tents and dispatches and other papers, but the rain fell in such torrents and the night was so dark that

It was not possible for Stuart to damage the railroad to any extent or to burn the railroad bridges or the acres of camp wagons that were there.

My command was in advance on that terrible rainy night. I was riding with the lieutenant commanding the platoon which formed the advance guard, when I suddenly saw, between the flashes of lightning, a man run across the road.

Under the influence of the spur my horse in a single bound reached the man, and under the influence of a pistol held to his head he told me that he was a servant of General Pope who was there with his headquarters tents, which, he said, were pitched in a clump of pines close by.

I made him get up in front of one of the troopers and guide a squadron, which I detached from the leading regiment, to the tents in the pines. On reaching the spot I quickly surrounded the federal headquarters, and, seeing a light in one of the tents, I dismounted and with one of my men entered it.

It was vacant, but filled with a large number of papers, showing where some one had been recently writing. There were also two glasses of toddy on the table.

A few days thereafter I captured a squadron of the Federal dragoons, under Major Thomas Hite of the regular army, whom I had formerly known when a cadet at West Point.

The major said that he and Lewis Marshall, the latter being an aide de camp of Pope and a nephew of General Lee, were in one of the tents that night and that he had been working all day over his quartermaster papers, and in view of the fact, as well as the tempestuous character of the night, he proposed to Marshall that they should take a drink.

"The whisky was brought out," continued the major, "sugar was put in glasses with the proper amount of water, to which a liberal allowance of whisky was added. I was just pouring the toddy from one glass to the other, thinking how soon the situation would be improved by swallowing it, when I heard the noise of horses' hoofs, and the report of one or two pistol shots. I quickly put the glasses down, saying, 'I believe that is some of that d— Confederate cavalry.'"

At this point of the narrative the major paused, and after looking around, added, "Gentlemen, if you believe me, I do not know whether I drank that toddy or not. The 'Rebs' were on us so quick that Marshall and I lifted the side of the tent and rolled down into a friendly ravine, and remained there shivering in the drenching rain until they rode off."

It only remains to say that Hite and Marshall did not drink the toddies they mixed, but that they rapidly disappeared down the throats of the two wet Confederates who found them.

The Two Flags

OCASIONALLY there comes to the writing man a story ready made from actual happenings before his eyes. Or there is told to him some tale that does not require the slightest movement of literary machinery to weave it into shape. The wool and warp are as straight and true and compact as if it had required hours of concentration to produce the fabric. Actual events follow in such dramatic sequence that it almost seems as if art had been brought to bear upon their presentation.

The other day a magazine writer visited the new state house in Boston in order to see the decorations that had been recently placed on the walls. He was standing looking at the picture painted by Mr. Robert Reid, the picture of Otis delivering his fiery speech before the judges, when suddenly a voice spoke at his elbow. Looking round, he saw standing beside him a short, slight man in a blue uniform. It did not take the little bronze button in the lapel of his coat to label him as an old soldier. He was stamped with it from the erect carriage of his head and shoulders to the glances of his keen gray eye.

"You have been through the building?" he asked suddenly. And upon being told that it was the writer's first visit, he politely offered his services as guide. They were accepted promptly. The little man in blue pointed out the old Hessian drum and sword, the first musket captured from the British, and the one that fired the shot at Lexington. He knew stories of the famous portraits on the walls, and after having examined the old senate and council chamber, he led the visitor down to the great octagon-shaped rotunda, where, behind their plates of glass, artfully grouped and festooned, were the battle flags of the Massachusetts regiments—nothing but the bare flagstuffs of some, others mere shreds of bunting hanging in pathetic festoons, only a few with the colors intact, pierced here and there with bullet holes. Stopping before the first corner he began in his low, well-modulated voice to explain about them. There were two shafts, shattered and roughly spliced a few inches below the gilded spear-heads.

"Those two flags," he began, "were given to the regiment by two sisters, who were engaged to be married to two officers; one a captain, the other a lieutenant. As you see, the flags were both hit in almost identically the same spot, and under them both officers were killed." Pointing to another flag he said, "Beneath this flag seven men were killed and four were wounded. It was decorated with a medal of honor." So it went on. There was a story to almost every one of the timeworn relics of the battlefields. At last the guide came to the case in the northwest corner of the hall. Immediately in front was a silken banner across whose faded red and white strips was a big blotch of brown. It needed no second glance to tell what the blotch meant.

"There is a story here," remarked the visitor, and the little man in blue looked at him keenly.

"Yes, sir, there is," he replied. "Three men were killed carrying that flag at the battle of Appomattox; as one would fall another would snatch it up, and still they carried it forward. As they went on, in the charge, a shell exploded over the head of the last man who had caught it, and a fragment struck him in the arm, between shoulder and elbow, cutting it off as by a surgeon's knife. He clasped the flag to his breast with the bloody stump and staggered on. At last, as he felt himself weakening, he turned about, and, seeing near him a man in his company who came from the same town, he cried, 'For God's sake, take it, Frank. I can't carry it any longer.'"

The visitor was breathless. "Well," he said, "and then—"

"There is a strange ending to that," returned the guide. "I was telling this to some visitor only the other day, and had got as far as what I am telling you when a tall man with gray hair, who was standing about where you are now, spoke up. 'Comrade,' he said, 'you're right! I was Frank.'"

A few minutes later, as they went down the corridor, the visitor asked another question.

"And what was the name of the sergeant whose blood we see there?" he asked.

"His name was Plunkett," was the answer. "There he is!"

A soldierly looking man in the blue uniform of a messenger of the senate came walking down the corridor. The magazine writer and his guide turned toward him. Across his breast was pinned the empty sleeve.—J. B. in Harper's Weekly.

THANHOUSER—2-Reel Feature—TONIGHT The Palace

The Cry of the Children

An episode of the illegal use of child labor, suggested by the poem of Elizabeth Barrett Browning. This feature is not what would be termed a thriller, but it is a deep, powerful, true-to-life story that will go straight to the heart. Settings are faithful in every detail, and the acting is flawless. Last, but not least, is the role played by the Thanhouser Kid. As Roosevelt said at Louisville: "When I plead the cause of the child toiling in inhuman labor, I am not only fighting for the weak; I am fighting, also, for the strong."

"Sure Sign" Of Big Corn Crop

When Mr. Farmer beholds the locust trees laden with snowy, fragrant blossoms, he regards it as a sure forecast of a bounteous corn crop, and, remarkable as it may appear, such is invariably the case.

This year the locust trees are covered with bloom, and unless the "sure sign" fails, Fayette county will have one of the greatest corn crops in its history, regardless of the delay in planting.

Colonel Declares Ohio Result Makes His Nomination a Cinch.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 23.—Colonel Roosevelt summed up his latest victory in the following words: "The result in Ohio has settled the contest." This morning he started on his campaign with a determination to add New Jersey to his list of wins in open primaries. It will be the last fight of the campaign for the nomination. He is confident of winning. Though he is sure that the nomination is his without New Jersey, the colonel is extremely anxious to finish up his fight with a strong victory in this state, so that his record of victories in states where there has been an open preference vote may be unmistakably clear.

"The victory in Ohio means that it will be hopeless to try to beat us at Chicago," continued the colonel in his statement, "by unseating our delegates who represent the popular will in Washington, Indiana, Kentucky and elsewhere, nor will it be possible for our opponents to win by seating delegates from southern states who represent nothing but fraud."

The crowd laughs.

The colonel had been chatting along about the victory in an informal way until someone happened to mention that the "impulsive judgment" of the people of Ohio seemed to have turned the trick. The crowd laughed and the colonel was highly tickled. He was in the most jovial kind of mood as he talked, seated in his library, and in riding boots and tan riding suit, just before a cross-country ride. The "impulsive judgment" of the people is a phrase he borrowed from Tim Woodruff's characterization of Roosevelt mob backing, that the colonel loves and constantly uses facetiously on the stump.

"Yes, yes, their impulsive judgment," he said. The colonel was pleased about the strength of the negro vote for him as showing that the negroes appreciated his stand in the Brownsville affair, which the Taft managers started as an issue against him, and which became such a lively issue in his favor.

In opening his three-day tour of New Jersey today the colonel will spend part of the day in Patterson, Passaic and Hackensack. From Hackensack he will motor through Hasbrouck Heights, Bloomfield, Montclair and West Orange in the afternoon. He will be entertained at luncheon at the Hamilton club in Patterson and at dinner at the Essex County Country club at West Orange.

OLD TIME FAVORITES OF THE DIAMOND

Will Play Here Next Sunday at Athletic Park.

The following will be the line-up and batting order at this city for Sunday, May 26th:

Hilderbrand, cf; Sullivan, lf; Pat Donahue, c; Collins, ss; McGuff, 3b; Snyder, 2b; Mitchell, rf; Nye, 1b; Mercer and McDonald, p.

It will be remembered when Washington C. H. had the salaried team, Evans, now of the Reds, was playing there before the salaried team had started, when Dick Collopy had the team. They beat Dick's team and then went to Wilmington and beat the team there; then they went to Bloomingburg and that is where Geo. Melvin signed Pat. Donahue and Andy Ward from the Reds, and they have both been in big show. Pat is home now and will be with the Reds Sunday at your city. Two years ago he was with Philadelphia Americans, the world champions, last year with Toledo. Jack Mercer, drafted two years ago by Pittsburgh, from Quincy, Ill., last year won city championship for Shiloh and Lily Brew Dayton this year with Chattanooga, Tenn. McDonald, fresh from Syracuse, of the Eastern league; Jim Mitchell, Brother Mike, captain Cincinnati Reds, who has also played professional ball with Newark, N. J., Eastern league. McGuff, six feet and 4 inches tall, who was with Macon, Ga., this season. Collins, who has signed with Burlington, Iowa and won't report. Sullivan and Hilderbrand are old leaguers and played with the Reds in this city when we lead the salaried team. Many remember also Washington C. H. salaried team only lost 7 games the whole season and the Reds beat them the first game they lost, after winning 15 straight, 8 to 7. These old stars appearing here with the Springfield Reds at the Athletic park should prove a strong magnet for the local fans—old ones who know what these stars can do, and later-day fans who expect much of them and know them by reputation, given by those who lived in the days when Washington had a salaried team.

A game surely worth while is scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

Killed by Fall of Slate.

Zanesville, O., May 23.—George Thomas, 46, a coal miner, was instantly killed by a fall of slate in the Red Tipton mine, south of this city.

Ends Life In River.

Toledo, O., May 23.—John Stahl, 68, committed suicide in the Maumee river after leaving a note that he was tired of life.

Says Revolt at End.

Havana, May 23.—The secretary of government declared that the so-called uprising of the negroes had been quelled in Santa Clara province, where the bands had been dispersed and the leaders were hiding in the woods. He expects also that today will see the end of the movement in Santiago province.

Memorial Day

By Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., jurist, was born in Boston, Mass., March 8, 1841. He received his education at Harvard university, where he received the degree of A. B. in 1861 and LL. B. in 1862. In 1886 he received the degree of LL. D. from Yale, and in 1903 the degree of D. C. L. from Oxford. He served three years in the 20th Mass. volunteers as lieutenant and lieutenant colonel; was wounded in the neck at Antietam, Sept. 17, 1864, and in the foot at Marye's Hill, Fredericksburg, May 3, 1863. He was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1867, became professor of law at Harvard law school in 1882, was associate justice from 1882 to 1899; chief justice from 1899 to 1902 in the supreme court of Massachusetts and associate justice of the supreme court of the United States Dec. 4, 1902.

(From an address before John Sedgwick Post No. 4, G. A. R., Keene, N. H., May 30, 1884.)

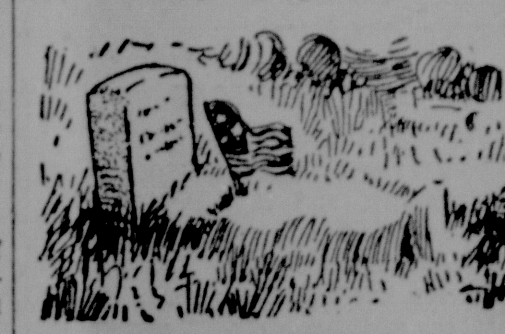

OMRADES, some of the associations of this day are not only triumphant, but joyful. Not all of those with whom we once stood shoulder to shoulder—not all of those whom we once loved and revered—are gone. On this day we still meet our companions in the freezing winter bivouacs and in those dreadful summer marches where every faculty of the soul seemed to depart one after another, leaving only a dumb animal power to set the teeth and to persist—a blind belief that somewhere and at last there was rest and water. On this day, at least, we still meet and rejoice in the closest tie which is possible between men—a tie which suffering has made indissoluble for better, for worse.

When we meet thus, when we do honor to the dead in terms that must sometimes embrace the living, we do not deceive ourselves. We attribute no special merit to a man for having served when all were serving. We know that if the armies of our war did anything worth remembering, the credit belongs not mainly to the individuals who did it, but to average human nature. We also know very well that we cannot live in associations with the past alone, and we admit that if we would be worthy of the past, we must find new fields for action or thought, and make for ourselves new careers. But, nevertheless, the generation that carried on the war has been set apart by its experience. Through our great good fortune, in our youth our hearts were touched with fire. It was given to us to learn at the outset that life is a profound and passionate thing. While we are permitted to scorn nothing but indifference, and do not pretend to undervalue the worldly rewards of ambition, we have seen with our own eyes, beyond and above the gold fields, the snowy heights of honor, and it is for us to bear the report to those who come after us. But, above all, we have learned that whether a man accepts for fortune her spade, and will look downward and dig, or from aspiration her axe and cord, and will scale the ice, the one and only success which it is his to command is to bring to his work a mighty heart.

Such hearts—ah me, how many!—were stilled 20 years ago; and to us who remain behind is left this day of memories. Every year in the full tide of spring, at the height of the symphony of flowers and love and life—there comes a pause, and through the silence we hear the lonely pipe of death. Year after year lovers wandering under the apple boughs and through the clover and deep grass are surprised with sudden tears as they see black veiled figures stealing through the morning to a soldier's grave. Year after year the comrades of the dead follow, with public honor, procession and commemorative flags and funeral march—honor and grief from us who stand almost alone, and have seen the best and noblest of our generation pass away.

But grief is not the end of all. I seem to hear the funeral march become a paean. I see beyond the forest the moving banners of a hidden column. Our dead brothers still live for us, and bid us think of life, not death—of life to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of the spring. As I listen, the great chorus of life and joy begins again, and amid the awful orchestra of seen and unseen powers and destinies of good and evil our trumpets sound once more a note of daring, hope, and will.

Patriotism.

You cannot analyze it. It is subtle, but it is true. It often "sleeps like the lamb, but roused from its lethargy breaks out with the strength of the lion." Never was patriotism more sublime than in the soldier of '61.

Latonia to Open On Memorial Day

Spring Meeting to Consist of
Twenty-four Racing Days.

DERBY WILL BE RUN JUNE 8

Indications Point to Greatest Session of Racing Ever Seen in the West, as the Best Horses in Training at the Present Time Are Entered in the Memorial Handicap and Other Events That Will Follow—Special Rates Arranged For Opening and Derby Days and on Saturdays by Railroads.

The spring meeting of the Latonia Jockey club will begin on May 30, with the running of the $3,000 Memorial handicap as the feature. Twenty-three days more racing will follow and the meeting will close on June 26.

The greatest Derby ever run in the west will take place on Saturday June 8.

Latonia is one of the garden spots of the country and the race course has always been famed for its beautiful surroundings. It lies in the Licking valley, nestling among majestic Kentucky hills and the scenic feature is most picturesque.

Since the advent of John Hachmeister, who is in complete charge, the Latonia track, which was built 23 years ago, has been brought to the standard of an up-to-date racing plant. Thirty thousand dollars were spent last year on the track, and when the opening day rolls around Latonia can claim to be the best appointed racecourse in the country. It can be easily reached from Cincinnati by Covington trolley cars, which go direct to the grandstand. The L. & N. also has a splendid train service to the course from the Fourth and Smith street depot. There is also a splendid roadway through Covington and then via the Madison pike, which makes it a pleasant journey with carriage or motor.

Coming to the big interest in the racing at Latonia, the L. & N. road has arranged for a special rate on the opening day and on Derby day from some of the principal cities of Kentucky, and the C. & O. & T. P. railway has done the same thing. The L. & N. has also provided for a round trip from Louisville to Latonia every Saturday during the meeting, return tickets being good until Monday morning.

The indications point to the greatest session of racing ever seen in the west. The Memorial handicap is sure to be a great race, and the Derby will be a struggle between the giants of the three-year-old division.

Best Horses Entered.

In the Memorial handicap are Meridan, winner of the Kentucky Derby of 1911, and one of the best horses in training at the present time. Then there is Adams Express, who beat the great Meridan at Louisville, Fashion Plate, Granite, Round the World and about 65 others. The three great three-year-olds, Worth, Sprite and The Manager, are also on the list, and one or two of these will go to the post if the weight assigned is looked upon with favor.

The Derby is the best looking one that ever Latonia presented. In that race there will be a struggle between the supremacy of the like of which has not been seen. Here is Worth, winner of the Kentucky Derby a few weeks ago. He belongs to H. C. Hallenbeck, an eastern millionaire. There is The Manager, belonging to Tom O'Dowell, who is every inch the true type of the Kentucky gentleman. There is Sprite, owned by H. K. Knapp, another eastern millionaire and one of the pillars of the Eastern Jockey club. It can be seen that if the race resolves itself to a struggle between the Kentucky horse against the pet of the eastern millionaires, there will surely be a race. The owners of these three clinkers all believe that their own is best, and the struggle will be a bitter one. The three mentioned will hardly have the race to themselves, as there are a large number of good colts eligible, and at a difference in the weight might do the unexpected.

Besides these two stakes there are four others which will be run on Saturday, with the exception of the Trophy stake, which will be decided on the closing day. The betting will be done through the pari-mutuals, which have been found the fairest of all betting systems, and they, at the same time, remove much of the incentive for dishonesty.

John C. Weber's prize band of America will hold a concert daily before and during the races.

ESCAPES AN AWFUL FATE.

A thousand tongues could not express the gratitude of Mrs. J. E. Cox, of Joliet, Ill., for her wonderful deliverance from an awful fate. "Typhoid pneumonia had left me with a dreadful cough," she writes. "Sometimes I had such awful coughing spells I thought I would die. I could get no help from doctor's treatment or other medicines till I used Dr. King's New Discovery. But I owe my life to this wonderful remedy for I scarcely cough at all now." Quick and safe, its most reliable of all throat and lung medicines. Every bottle guaranteed, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Blackmer & Tanquary.

Drag Lake For Body.

Cleveland, O., May 23.—Relatives of Henry Stark, 73, are dragging Lake Erie for his body and a roll of bills amounting to $3,400. Stark drew $3,400 from a bank. That night his coat and hat and a note bidding good-bye to the world were found on a dock.

Christy At His Best Stops Reds

Allows Reds Only Three Hits and Wins For Giants.

Cincinnati, O., May 23.—The Giants wound up their first series in Cincinnati in impressive style, taking the closing game, 6 to 1. The contest was the fastest played of the five, the fielding sharp and brilliant and the hitting of the visitors heavy and timely. Mathewson pitched his best game of the season. He allowed but three hits.

DRAW OUT POISON.

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glass, Wood and Needles from the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing ointment as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock, of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by Brown's Drug Store to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as bruises, burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand, 25c and 50c a jar at Brown's Drug Store.

BEST SKIN SOAP.

Is San Cura Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing virtues. Use it regularly, and it will make the skin soft and velvety; will remove pimples and blackheads. It's the real soap for babies' tender skin, which mothers of infants should remember. 25 cents a large cake at Brown's Drug store.

BALL AND BAT NOTES

The Brooklyn club has released Outfielder Coulson to the Newark club.

Hilltop patrons rather like the playing of Zinn. He handles fly balls with judgment and ease.

Chase is fielding his position as well as ever, but always has hit better than he is now doing.

Higgins, the new Brooklyn catcher, handles himself like an old timer. He'll get a chance in a regular game some day.

Big Tesreau of the Giants looks as if he would have a regular turn in the box. He's got everything, including nerve.

Louden, last year's Newark infielder, has made a big hit at Detroit's third base and Hugh Jennings says he will keep him there.

If the Cincinnati will take $5,000 for the release of the Cuban outfielder Marsans the Washington club will pay that amount in a jiffy.

Griffith has the Washingtons fighting and hustling for everything, and likewise he's rather a nuisance with his chattering from the bench.

Russell Ford, Ed Walsh, Nap Rucker, Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson are pitchers of note who have been subjected to defeat this season.

There is still hope for the Highlanders. Only a few years ago a Boston team started off the season with nine straight defeats and yet it won the championship.

The magnates are partially convinced that the championship season begins too early, but they don't contemplate a change in view of the way the fans crowd around the box office windows.

Pitcher George Bell, formerly of Brooklyn, has notified Manager McGinnity of Newark, that he will be unable to play this season on account of having had a floating cartilage removed from his knee.

Many competent authorities figure the Boston Nationals 25 per cent. stronger than they were last season, and there are Boston fans willing to wager high hats, neckties and boxes of candy that the Braves will finish in the first division.

Theodore Breitenstein, the veteran left-hand pitcher, who was a $10,000 beauty many years ago, has at last abandoned himself to fate. He has accepted a position as umpire in the Southern league, where, they say, the fans have perfect control and the pop bottles never miss their mark.

The Federals Advancing On Rebels

Artillery Figures In Latest Engagement on Mexican Soil.

Rellano, Chihuahua, May 23.—Fighting between the federals and rebels was resumed with usual vigor, much of it being artillery. Although the federals had advanced to within two miles of the rebel trenches and there was much skirmishing between outposts, nothing is known of the casualties on the field, but they have been light in the rebel trenches.

Train-riding Must Leave City

Joseph Hayslip, arrested upon suspicion of having been connected with the Hooker robbery, was arraigned before Mayor Smith Wednesday morning and proved an alibi.

Harslip was also charged with train riding, and entered a plea of guilty to this charge, whereupon he was given a suspended sentence of $25 and the costs, and ordered out of town or stand committed to the workhouse. He promised to leave the city at six o'clock in the evening.
